Mr. Editor:

Will you permit me to use the columns of your paper to call attention of the citizens of Napanee to the financial condition of the Library? Owing to the loss of the Municipal Grant and a reduction in the general receipts, the Library is confronted with a deficit of $250.00 which must be wiped out by the end of the year or the grant will be reduced. The people evidently devote more time than previously in reading war news in the daily paper. I think they have no time to read the excellent books now in the library dealing with every aspect of the war. This is a serious matter as no one can obtain an adequate and comprehensive view of the war without reading some of the books upon the subject which are now in the library. This is a serious matter as no one can obtain an adequate and comprehensive view of the war without reading some of the books upon the subject which are now in the library. This is a serious matter as no one can obtain an adequate and comprehensive view of the war without reading some of the books upon the subject which are now in the library.

War Summary of The Latest Events

Sir Douglas Haig reported last night further gains north of the Ancre during the day, and announced that 5,673 Germans have been taken since Monday morning. Berlin, with no pretence of indicating to the people of Germany the importance of the losses sustained, states that "British attacks have been carried out on both sides of the Ancre; on the southern bank they are already shattered."

The conspicuous skill, dash and fortitude of the British troops engaged in the advance call for the praise of their leader. Success, he states, was not won without a hard struggle, but the British losses have not been high considering the extent of ground gained. One division advanced a mile and took over a thousand prisoners at the expense of 450 casualties. There will doubtless be a pause in the operations until new artillery positions are secured and the ground is again prepared by bombardment for a further infantry rush. General Haig is prodigal of shells that he may spare his men.

A great German counter-attack was launched yesterday against the French lines both north and south of the Somme. On the northern and western outskirts of the Wood of St. Pierre-Vaast, the Germans succeeded in gaining a foothold in the advanced French trenches. South of the Somme, in the eastern part of the village of Pressiere, recently captured, the French lost some ground. These small advantages were purchased by the Germans at the price of very heavy losses, after a sanguinary struggle which lasted during most of the day. The German attack had been carefully planned, and was undoubtedly intended to sweep back the French all along the front. The official statement from Paris speaks of the effort of Prince Rupprecht's army as being a strong one, made with numerous effectives. The artillery preparation was intense, and probably involved the moving of a considerable number of guns from Verdun and other points along the western front.

A new sphere of activity is indicated by a Belgian report which states that in the course of the day there was considerable artillery action on the whole front of the Belgian army. Much of this front along the inundated country to the north of the Yser River. It is not probable that the Germans will at-

PROCLAMATION !

POULTRY SALE NOTICE.

Whereas it has been suggested by several parties interested that WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, THE 29th AND 30th DAYS OF NOVEMBER, 1916, would be suitable days for a poultry fair and sale for the Napanee district, and

Whereas the Council of the Town of Napanee thinks it proper that said sale should be held on said days, and Whereas in order that the producers may have an opportunity of coming into contact with all the buyers in open competition, it has been arranged to have all poultry brought to the market place in the Town of Napanee on said days when the several buyers will be present to examine the poultry and buy the same, as provided by the Market By-Law,

And whereas it has been further provided that the Chief of Police of the Town of Napanee shall be at liberty to examine all scales upon which poultry sold at said sale is weighed: I do therefore in my official capacity as Mayor of the Town of Napanee proclaim that Wednesday and Thursday, the 29th and 30th days of November, 1916, be poultry days in the Town of Napanee, and do call upon all producers and buyers to meet in the open market place in the said Town of Napanee for the purpose of buying and selling of poultry.

G. F. RUTTAN,
Mayor.

Dated at Napanee this 8th day of November, 1916.

GOD SAVE THE KING

Leave your order early for personal Christmas greeting cards. Several lines to choose from at WALLACE'S Drug Store Limited,

There was considerable artillery action on the whole front of the Belgian army. Much of this front lies along the inundated country to the north of the Yser River. It is not probable that the Germans will attempt any infantry movements here on a large scale. Activity may be due rather to a fear that the Allies will attempt an advance along the north east coast toward Ostend in the hope of lessening the serious losses resulting from the operations of submarines based on the Belgian coast. British seaplanes have again bombed Zeebrugge, which is quite clearly regarded as the base from which much of Germany's submarine warfare is directed.

The battle for Monastir has been resumed, and stubborn fighting has developed in the region of the Cerna River. The Serbian advance, which began on Monday and continued on Tuesday and Wednesday, has resulted in a retreat of the Germans and Bulgars northwesterly from Iven, closely followed by the Serbs. The Allied troops are now attacking west of the Cerna in the region of Kenali. This town is located about twelve miles southeast of Monastir, on the line of the Saloniki-Monastir railway. In an advance up the valley of the Cerna toward Monastir the use of the railway passing through Kenali will be of great value to the troops of General Sarraill's army. According to supplementary reports the Serbs during the past five days have captured over 3,200 prisoners, among whom were 600 Germans.

Operations in the mountainous region to the west of the valley of Monastir are proceeding in close cooperation with the Serbian drive on the eastern side of the valley. The enemy admits the withdrawal of Bulgarian troops to avoid a flank attack, and states that in the Cerna bend the enemy captured some heights. The British troops in the Vardar Valley also show activity. Heavy artillery bombardments of the Bulgarian fronts are taking place.

Roumania wins in the south and loses along the Transylvanian border, which is for her far more important. It is announced that Russian and Roumanian troops have occupied Boasic, on the lower Danube, about nine miles from Cernavoda, and have progressed along the front in the Dobrudja. This good news is counterbalanced by the announcement from Petrograd that heavily reinforced bodies of German troops have succeeded in still further press the Roumanians in the Val Juiul, the Alt and the Pralin states that 1,800 prisoners captured on Tuesday in the successful engagements. The Roumanians fight splendidly, and gross made is not great in distance. The trouble is steady and practically unsteady this vital sphere of operation. On the northern part of the manian border along the peaks Russian reinforcements enabled the Roumanians to stand. It is stated that have fallen back through Valley into Transylvania, been pursued by the R across the border. These may still prove of value in Falkenhayn's drive south in Transylvanian Alps.

The Austrians won a sm over the Italians in the re of Goritz. The Italian advance on the Hill of San Marco form of a salient at House. The enemy, after flanking the position, launched battalions upon it. Five Austrians tried to take it, times their charging infantry driven back. They then re bombardment, and brought guns of heavy calibre to the position that some of the Italian trenches had to be ed. On the Carso the Italians advanced at several points with object of securing a better and in these advances took of prisoners.

It is of importance, in view great activity of German and the number of vessels by them, to note the statement of the Admiral Macnamara of the House of Commons that the tonnage of vessels of burden and over up to Sept from all causes since the of war has been only 2 1/2. This is a revelation of treachery in British shipyards, that while submarine warfare is dangerous to those down to the sea in ships it menace in the remotest of the air's power to transport supplies of war, feed her population and provide raw for her factories.

OUR TOWN AFFAIRS

To the Editor of the Nananee
Express:
Dear Sir

TURKEY DAY.

The date for the annual poultry fair this year has been fixed for the 29th and 30th of November. This well established fair, which has been in existence for eight or ten years, has developed into being one of the most important in this part of the Province and the council this year is trying to regulate the fair in harmony with the by-laws of the town, and all sellers of poultry and buyers of the same, will meet on the town market place as set forth in the proclamation of the mayor. The Clerk has already received intimations from a number of large wholesale buyers, that they will each have one or more representatives on the market each day of the fair to purchase poultry offered for sale and it is to be hoped that it will be the most successful event that has ever been held in Nananee.

RE STREET WATERING TAX.

In order to clear some slight misapprehensions, the facts with regard to these taxes are as follows: The by-law was passed on the 15th day of December, A.D., 1914, as number 945 and may be inspected in the office of the town clerk. Those present and voting for the by-law were Mayor Alexander, Reeve Denison, Councillors Waller, Wiseman, Walters, Graham, Dickinson and Carson.

In the annual statement for 1915 among the assets which it professed to hand over to the Council for this year, were a number of debts due from ratepayers to the town, and among these the second item is street sprinkling rate ($1552.77) which was the arrears of street sprinkling rates for 1914 and 1915. The street sprinkling for 1915 amounted to ($673.22) and the debenture providing payment for the purchase of extra street sprinklers under by-law number 940, passed Nov. 3rd, A.D., 1914, is ($177.97) per year. The balance of this ($1552.00) was the arrears of street watering for the year 1914 with the current years costs for street watering, make up the balance of this indebtedness now being collected and all this has been duly audited in 1915 and 1916. The town council having to pay the debts and provide the running expenses of the town, are carrying out their duty by trying to realize upon the assets handed over to them as cash. It is therefore desirable and the ratepayers are strongly urged to pay all debts due to the town for taxes and otherwise, before the 14th of December, so that the financial position of the town may be placed on the best possible footing for the incoming council for

BRITISH STRUCK

General Haig's Troops on the Ancre River

New Phase of the Somme Successfully Undertake Prisoners Already Caught Together With Positions of Strength, Including Fortified Villages.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—At Germans in a thick mist fore daylight the British astride the Ancre Brook foe from several powerful trenches in a five-mile line captured the strongly fortified villages of St. Pierre Divion, Mont-Hamel. When night fell the British were then at the north of this point in encircle it. British headquarters reported Monday night that time of reporting 3,300 had already been brought.

The part of the German advance comprises original trenches, which Sir Douglas describes in his bulletin the success of his command.

It is believed that the had a share in the victory probably launched a flanking attack across the line of the German trenches from the heights at the Regina trench.

Before this battle commenced important successes were achieved on the front of the where the French captured the capture of Saillisel Village and the British consolidation of another yards of the strong Regina north-east of Thiepval, early on Saturday morning.

The Regina trench fell blow. Saillisel Village long drawn out hand-to-hand struggle to master it. The 60 prisoners, including French in their successful attack on a trench. The French unwounded prisoners and their fighting for Saillisel.

Step by step the French driven the Germans back occupied Saturday only a few of houses in the eastern part of Saillisel Village. These were carried Saturday in a single attack. As seen from the number of bodies encountered in this village, the losses are heavy.

The capture of the additional yards of the Regina the British further improved their positions north of the making the salient too holding with success, and the capture of Saillisel by the British the remaining German positions in the St. Pierre Divion. The Germans are reported ready evacuating this position.

Besides driving the Germans from the eastern portion of the French, by bombing at progress to the north of it means bombarded this position great violence.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The aerial raids, including German steel works at Rhenish Prussia, have been carried out by British and French forces.

HUGHES HAS RESIGNED.

Sir Robert Borden Asked Minister of Militia to Step Out.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—Lieut.-Gen- eral Sir Sam Hughes has resigned as Minister of Militia and Defence at the request of the Prime Minister. His resignation has been accepted. A brief official communication was issued to this effect Monday night as follows:

"It is announced that the Prime Minister has requested and has re- ceived the resignation of the Minister of Militia and Defence. The retire- ment of Sir Sam Hughes is, in part, the outcome of the establishment of the Ministry of Overseas Forces and in part is due to assumption by Sir Sam of powers which in the judg- ment of the Prime Minister can be exercised only by the Government as a whole. It is anticipated that the correspondence which brought about the request for the Minister's resi- gnation will be made public immedi- ately. It must first be submitted to the Governor-General."

A second memorandum gives an authoritative denial to the rumors which have been in circulation relative to the possibility of Sir Robert Borden's retirement from the Gov- ernment. It says:

"With reference to the rumor that Sir Robert Borden intends to give up the Premiership and retire from public life, the announcement was made Monday that all such rumors are absolutely destitute of foundation. The Prime Minister deems it his duty to remain at his post until after the close of the war, and he will so re- main so long as he has the mandate of the people. So far as he is con- cerned there has been no thought or suggestion of accepting any judicial or other position either here or in Great Britain. All such rumors are purely imaginative."

Unofficial information is to the ef- fect that the resignation of Sir Sam Hughes was asked for by Sir Robert Borden on Friday by letter.

RUSSIANS IN DOBRUDJA.

Retreat of the Teutons May Become Great Disaster.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Mackensen is still in retreat in Dobrudja and ac- cording to the semi-official advices his forces are badly demoralized, with one-third of his effectives gone.

The Russians have crossed the Da- nube into Dobrudja at two points south of Schernavoda and the Rus- sian fleet has renewed the bombard- ment of Constanza according to Pe- trograd advices.

The ravages of disease and the military reverses sustained are de- clared to have seriously affected the morale of von Mackensen's army, while the reinforcements he request- ed to make good his losses are said not to have been provided, his retreat therefore being conducted under dis- astrous conditions.

SERBS ARE VICTORIOUS

Defeated Bulgarians Fall Back Before the Victors.

The French War Office Announces That King Ferdinand's Men Re- tired a Distance of Nearly Two Miles and That 1,000 Men Were Taken Prisoner.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Serbians are continuing their pursuit of the defeated Bulgarians in the Cerna bend and have captured the village of Iven, according to a Reuter's despatch from Salonica. Iven is five miles north of Polog, reported cap- tured Sunday, and is about ten miles within the Serbian border. Its cap- ture, if confirmed, also means that the Serbians have effected a new crossing of the Cerna River.

The French War Office, corroborat- ing the Salonica despatch, says the Serbians have won a brilliant victory over the Germans and Bulgarians in the Cerna district, south-east of Monastir, the War Office announced Monday. The Serbians, supported by French artillery, forced the Teu- tonic allies to retire a distance of nearly two miles, and captured about 1,000 prisoners.

On Saturday the Serbians inflicted a further defeat on the Bulgarians, capturing the whole of the village of Polog by assault and the whole of Culse hill.

"After the Serbian success of Fri- day in the Tehake (Chuke) range," says Reuter's Salonica correspondent, "the Bulgars, reinforced by fresh troops, counter-attacked Friday night and Saturday morning. The Serbians easily stemmed the counter- attacks, completed the capture of Polog and made further progress northward, pursuing the enemy and capturing a thousand fresh prisoners including some Germans, and eight howitzers, several machine guns and a quantity of material."

"Since October 14 a total of 56 guns, including trench mortars, were captured from the Bulgar-Ger- mans."

The French official report of Sat- urday concerning operations on the Macedonian front reads:

"Eastern army: On the left bank of the Cerna the Serbians, taking the offensive, vigorously in the moun- tainous region of Chuke, north of Skochivir, attacked Bulgarian forces and drove them back, not- withstanding fierce resistance from strongly fortified positions. Up to now 500 prisoners, including 100

Calling All Civilians.

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—A new mea-

Government, under which home auxiliary services for the army would be organized throughout Germany,
according to announcements in various newspapers. It is proposed that the new organizations shall include factory employes and persons who are now drawing an income without working. An extraordinary sitting of the Reichstag is to be convoked, say Berlin newspapers, supposedly to pass a bill calling up all fit civilians for "service in the interest of the Fatherland." The newspapers say it is not intended to extend the age limit for military service.

Lieut.-Governor Mackeen Dead.

HALIFAX, Nov. 14.—Lieut.-Gov.
Mackeen of Nova Scotia died at 7 o'clock Monday evening, after a paralytic stroke. Hon. David Mackeen was born at Mabou, N.S., in 1829,
and was long and intimately con-

Negroes for France.

CAPE TOWN, Nov. 14.—Ten thousand blacks have been recruited for labor service in Europe, and are about ready to depart. Their organization is to be a strictly military one, and they will be subjected to military discipline, although they will not under any circumstances be employed as a fighting force. They have been formed into five battalions of 2,000 men each, and will be under the direct control of officers of the Union of South Africa. They will be housed in closed compounds, which will be provided with everything requisite for their comfort and well-being. Native chaplains will be attached to each battalion. The flat rate of pay for privates will be $15 a month, with higher rates for those of higher rank. While all the commissioned officers are, of course,
white, the sergeants, corporals and lance-corporals are chosen from among the men themselves. Specifically, they will be employed in dock labor at French ports. They will receive one-third of their pay while abroad, the balance to be handed to them on their return to Cape Town.

The War Supplies Trade.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Export of war supplies for the nine months ending September 31 amounted to $997,970,000, or more than 25 per cent. of the country's total export trade for the period, according to figures published here Sunday by the Journal of Commerce. The value of explosives sent to belligerents was more than half a billion dollars, and automobiles, horses, and mules,
metal-working machinery, and wire ranked next in that order. According to a table published covering war supplies exports since the movement began in January, 1915, their value for the 21 months was $1,617-845,000, or about 22 per cent. of the country's total exports. More war supplies were sent abroad during the first nine months of this year than throughout 1915.

HIS PERILOUS RIDE.

Strategy of a Dispatch Bearer in the Russo-Japanese War.

The invention of wireless telegraphy has done away with much of the old time dispatch sending which was so picturesque a feature of previous wars. Often when two friendly armies are separated by a force of the enemy it is a matter of defeat or victory that a means of communication shall be opened between them. Thousands of brave men have lost their lives in performing this temporary war postal service.

During the Russo-Japanese war an officer of Cossacks offered to carry a dispatch which ten horsemen had already failed to get through.

"The others have failed," the officer insisted, "because they traveled on horseback. I shall go under my horse."

"Under your horse!" the general exclaimed. But he accepted the offer of the volunteer. Whereupon the Cossack officer received the communion, said his prayers, bade goodbye to his men and started off in the middle of the night strapped face downward beneath his horse, which he guided by means of passing the reins between the fore legs of the horse. The Japanese outposts whistled to what they thought was a riderless horse, but did not shoot at it when it did not heed them. The animal, driven on by kicks from the officer's heels, accomplished the journey of thirty miles in safety. On the following night the officer returned as he had gone.

When Lieutenant Gilmore, an officer of our navy, was captured by the Filipinos during an insurrection he sent news of his whereabouts through the Filipino lines by a Spanish prisoner who had been liberated. Naturally all such persons were carefully searched. But the insurgent officer failed to examine the bamboo walking staff of the Spaniard. The end had been opened, the written message inserted, and a cork was fitted into the hole again, which also rendered the paper safe from water.

CURIOUS TOBACCO LORE.

Pipe Smoking Was Once Regarded as an Art in England.

Every one knows that tobacco was one of the gifts of the new world to the old and that Sir Walter Raleigh made smoking fashionable in England in the days of Queen Elizabeth. For the next fifty years the smoking of pipes not only became general among all classes, but a thing of highest fashion, held in light of an art. In those days it was not said that a man smoked tobacco, but that he "drank" or "sucked" tobacco, and the smoker was called a "tobacconist."

A curious feature of tobacco manners among fashionable smokers of the Elizabethan period was the practice of passing the pipe from one to another, after the fashion of a loving cup. In a play of 1614 one London gallant says to another who is smoking, "Please you to import your smoke?" "Very willingly, sir," says the smoker. No. 2 takes a whiff or so and courteously says, "In good faith, a pipe of excellent vapor!"

The rich young swell carried about with him an elaborate tobacco apparatus, often of gold or silver. It included a long, thin pipe with which he

OLD TIME PITCHERS

Some of the Former Stars Who Won Fame on the Diamond.

THEIR FEATS OF ENDURANCE.

Spalding All Alone Twirled the Old Boston Nationals to Victory Four Years in Succession—Radbourne's Great Record—Some Sad Finishes.

What becomes of all the great pitchers who thrill the baseball populace for a day? That depends upon the age in which they lived. If a man won his fame in the period from twenty to forty years ago he probably went back penniless to manual labor whence he came, or else he found an early grave. But if he was fortunate enough to make his baseball fame within the last score of years he may still be drawing a good salary from some club treasury. Or he may be enjoying prosperity as a successful business man.

A. G. Spalding was one of the few men who won nation wide fame on the diamond in the earlier period, was absolutely unspoiled by it and then followed it up with even greater fame in the business world. Spalding jumped into the limelight as a seventeen-year-old boy with the Rockford (Ill.) club way back in 1867. Talk about the endurance of the modern twirling giants! Just consider what this original iron man did in the early seventies. During that period he was a member of the Boston Nationals, and he won the league championship for his team four years in succession. He was Boston's only pitcher, and he twirled every game the team played, though in those days games were scheduled only every other day and the season was shorter than it is now.

Old timers love to dwell on the prowess of Charles Radbourne, who shone with quite as much brilliance as Spalding until consumption cut short his career, about twenty-five years ago. Radbourne was a member of the Providence team, and when Charles Sweeney deserted that club in midseason only Radbourne was left for slab work. But that didn't bother Radbourne, for he not only jumped right in and did all the pitching, but made a new world's record by winning eighteen straight games and the championship for Providence. This gameness, however, cost Radbourne his life, for his health broke under the strain, which was generally credited with having caused his consumption.

From day laborer to the world's premier pitcher and then back again, is, in brief, the history of Amos Rusie, who from 1889 to 1894 thrilled the baseball world. Rusie had a narrow escape from being cast into the utter darkness of oblivion before he could get started. The first day he entered the big league he was weighed by Bancroft, the manager of the Cleveland team, and found wanting. After watching him pitch one game Bancroft let him go. But John T. Brush, owner of the Cincinnati club, had faith in this youngster, gave him his chance, and suddenly the recruit blossomed forth into the greatest

MARK TWAIN STORIES.

An Unintended Joke and a Bit of the Humorist's Wit.

England fairly reveled in Mark Twain. At one of the great banquets a roll of the distinguished guests was called and the names properly applauded. Mark Twain, busily engaged in low conversation with his neighbor, applauded without listening, vigorously or mildly as the others led. Finally a name was followed by a great burst of long and vehement clapping. This must be some very great person indeed, and Mark Twain, not to be outdone in his approval, stoutly kept his hands going until all the others had finished.

"Whose name was that we were just applauding?" he asked of his neighbor, "Mark Twain's?"

But it was no matter—they took it all as one of his jokes.

He was a wonder and a delight to them. Whatever he did or said was to them supremely amusing. When on one occasion a speaker humorously referred to his American habit of carrying a cotton umbrella, his reply that he did so because it was the only kind of an umbrella that an Englishman wouldn't steal was repeated all over England next day as one of the finest examples of wit since the days of Swift.—Paine's "Boys' Life of Mark Twain" in St. Nicholas.

USE OF THE TOOTHBRUSH.

It Was Unknown in England in Lord Chesterfield's Time.

When did the English first adopt the toothbrush habit, which in recent times has been denounced by certain medical authorities? In "Esmond" Thackeray makes Lord Castlewood spend "a tenth part of his day in the brushing of his teeth and the oiling of his hair," and in doing so the novelist commits a double anachronism.

During the first half of the eighteenth century all fine gentlemen wore wigs and had no use for oil on their hair, while the toothbrush was so late as 1754 unknown to Lord Chesterfield. Writing to his son, Chesterfield says:

"I hope you take great care of your mouth and teeth and that you clean them well every morning with a sponge and tepid water, with a few drops of arquebuse water dropped into it. I do insist upon your never using those sticks or any hard substance whatever, which always rub away the gums and destroy the varnish of the teeth."—London Saturday Review.

Poisoning as a Diversion.

Poisoning is never likely again to become a fashionable diversion, as it was from time to time in ancient Rome. In B. C. 331, for instance, there was a mysterious pestilence which seemed to be particularly fatal to leading men. At last a slave girl gave information to the authorities, and a consequent police raid resulted in the discovery of about twenty matrons, some of them of high patrician families, busily preparing drugs over a fire. They insisted that the drugs were not poisonous, but, being compelled to drink them publicly in the forum as a guarantee of good faith, perished miserably. Further information followed, and 170 matrons in all

It included a tobacco box, tongs with which to lift a live coal to light his pipe, a ladle "for the cold snuffle into the nostrill," a priming iron and as large a collection of pipes as his means could afford and his pockets could find room for. Sometimes the tobacco box was of ivory and occasionally a looking glass was set in the lid, so that when the beau opened it to take out tobacco he could also have a view of his delectable person.

Fanny Kemble's Quick Wit.

Fanny Kemble had a fiery temper, which matched that of her husband, Pierce Butler, and speedily brought about one of the most noted divorce trials reported in the lawbooks. In her youth she was remarkably beautiful, and in the role of Juliet she was the personification of dazzling loveliness. She was noted for her keenness of wit even in the days of her old age.

Once when an impertinent street loungeur stepped up to her while she was looking in the window of a bric-a-brac store and said, "Are you fond of antiquities?" Mrs. Kemble quickly unpinned her veil and, turning on the man her aged face (she was then seventy-three), asked in tragical tones, "Are you?"

Deadly Prussic Acid.

Prussic acid is so deadly that even the smell of the acid produces pain in the throat and in the region of the heart. There are few poisons for which there is such little opportunity for an antidote. If there is time—and there seldom is, for the poison is almost instantaneous—ammonia inhaled very freely may give relief and reduce the absolute certainty of death to a grave probability.

Paternal Sarcasm.

A father, in the stillness of night, called downstairs to his daughter solemnly:

"Hannah, what time is it?"

A pause and Hannah answered:

"It's just a quarter after 10, father."

"All right," the father said. "And Hannah, don't forget to start the clock again after the young man goes out to get his breakfast."—Washington Star.

Chess In Ancient Ceylon.

In ancient Ceylon the game of chess was played with local variations peculiar enough to note. The king may not castle, but he is permitted to jump like a knight till checked. The pawns are exchangeable on the last row for the pieces on whose row they stand.

Stole a Useless Thing.

An indignant merchant who had been robbed of a thermometer put this notice in his window:

"The person who took the thermometer from my door had better return it. It will be of no use where he is going, as it registers only 125 degrees."

Their Fears.

"I'm afraid, my dear, that you went to sleep during that learned discourse," said the woman with a strong sense of duty.

"Yes," replied her husband. "When it started I was afraid I wouldn't."—Washington Star.

one game after another. But John T. Brush, owner of the Cincinnati club, had faith in this youngster, gave him his chance, and suddenly the recruit blossomed forth into the greatest pitcher of his day. But prosperity and the applause of the unthinking crowd were too much for Rusie.

Then there were Tim Keefe and John Clarkson, about whose respective merits the fans are still divided. In 1888 Keefe won nineteen straight games for New York, while in 1899 Clarkson pitched seventy-two games for Boston, winning forty-six of them. These two men, whose exploits were heralded from one end of the country to the other, were radically different in temperament. Clarkson utterly ruined his health by not taking proper care of himself and died in an insane asylum. But Tim Keefe retired with money in the bank.

Probably more printers' ink was used to tell of the exploits of the eccentric Rube Waddell than any other baseball player that ever lived. Rube was always good for a story, no matter what he did. On the diamond this man was forever breaking records, first in jumping from one team to another and then by making new strikeout records. Probably his greatest feat was when he called in all the outfielders and then retired the side in order. But consumption finished his broken down constitution.

Cy Young belongs to a different school of pitchers. He was a shining example of baseball longevity founded upon clean living. This marvelous man, who broke into major league baseball in 1890, pitched every season for twenty-two years, a record still unequalled.

The Fragonard Panels.

The celebrated Fragonard panels had their inception, it is said, in the lavish expenditures of the Countess du Barry. They were designed for her chateau, but never adorned it, owing to a dispute between the painter and the king's favorite. Mme. du Barry, notwithstanding her lowly origin, was extremely critical in matters of art and was dissatisfied with these pictures, which are among the greatest prizes of the connoisseurs of today.

Color Blindness.

The ratio of color blind people to those of normal sight is about 65 to 1,154. This does not mean that all of the sixty-five are absolutely color blind, but that that is the ratio of those who are more or less affected. Color blindness is said to have been discovered by the famous Dr. Priestley in 1777.

Try to be happy in this present moment and put not off being so to a time to come.

In 1912 rain fell in the nitrate territory of Chile for the first time in nearly half a century, and for the first time in man's memory the coast towns were free from dust.

were not poisonous, but, being compelled to drink them publicly in the forum as a guarantee of good faith, perished miserably. Further information followed, and 170 matrons in all were condemned. But this record was soundly beaten in B. C. 184, when a four months' inquiry by the praetor is said to have led to the condemnation of 2,000 persons.

A Resourceful Badger.

An English artist while painting a sea piece discovered a badger's lair and thought to play the animal a practical joke. Gathering together a bundle of grass and weeds, he placed it inside the mouth of the hole and, igniting it with a match, waited for the ignominious flight of the astonished householder. But Master Badger was a resourceful animal and not disposed to be made a butt of practical jokers. He came up from the depths of his hole as soon as the penetrating smoke told him that there was a fire on the premises and deliberately scratched earth on the burning grass with his strong claws until all danger was past. No human being could have grasped the situation more quickly or displayed greater skill in dealing with an unfamiliar event.

The First Stock Exchange.

The Stock Exchange did not call itself by that name till nearly the end of the eighteenth century. A newspaper of July 15, 1773, tells us how the name of their place of business was altered by resolution from "New Jonathan's" to "The Stock Exchange" which is to be wrote over the door. The brokers then collected sixpence each and christened the house with punch."—London Chronicle.

His Begging Letter.

Poet—There goes a notorious and confirmed begging letter writer. Friend—What! Why, I thought that chap was an editor. Poet—Well, he has written me at least a dozen letters begging me not to send him any more of my stuff.—Puck.

Admiration of Authority.

Old Age Due to Sleep.

Brillat-Savarin had two sisters passed by far the greater part of his lives asleep, and both, than regime, nearly attained 100. These ladies lived at a count belonging to the author of "I ologie du Gout," which he used September and October.

They remained in bed for ten of the year, getting up two days his arrival to prepare for him a normal life during it. On his departure they wrote "Adieu, antheime, a l'annee p nous allons nous coucher."

MARVELS OF SCIENCE

In Wondering at the New Ones Don't Forget the Railroad.

The most recent mysteries of science are the ones that receive most attention. The air is full of talk nowadays about the thrilling wonders of wireless telegraph and aviation and subterranean transportation and submarine navigation. And very rightly, for these are marvels. But for that matter so are some of the things which we have gradually grown so used to that we never see them at all.

There is the railroad. Plenty of romantic mystery is to be found in the railroad yard of a great terminal. It is, first of all, a network of steel pathways which seems unthreadable. Trains come and go by devious ways; semaphore arms rise or fall in that one rectangular gesture of theirs. The providence that shapes the ends of all this takes the form of men tugging at some very prosaic looking levers in switch towers.

To get still another effect look at the yard by night, when great limiteds come surging through the dark, when the only guides are pieces of multi-colored switch and signal lamps. The cars of night freights being made up trundle about, and the yard never sleeps. In its way it is as full of life as the jungle. Every locomotive is a dragon harnessed to man's service.

The marvels of science are all about us, and the ones we have grown used to are just as remarkable as those of today and tomorrow.—Collier's.

That grinning matches were an accepted form of sport in early English days is shown by an advertisement announcing a gold ring to be grinned for by men on Oct. 9 at the Swan, Colleshill heath, Warwickshire, which appeared in the Post Boy of Sept. 17, 1711. Addison gives a detailed account of one of these "controversies of faces," telling us that the audience unanimously bestowed the ring on a cobbler who "produced several new grins of his own invention, having Ambition.

The scroll of fame has variant attractions for different minds.

"Here lies one whose name was writ
 in water"—the despairing and dying John Keats desired that admission of defeat engraved for his epitaph.

"Write me as one who loved his fellow men," was Leigh Hunt's aspiration.

To be remembered as the author of the Declaration of Independence and of the first statute for religious freedom and as the founder of the University of Virginia, this was Thomas Jefferson's prayer to posterity.

Thus, one may go the range. And thus the lines recur:

count of one of these "controversies of faces," telling us that the audience unanimously bestowed the ring on a cobbler who "produced several new grins of his own invention, having been used to cut faces for many years
 together over his last."

His performance was something like this: "At the very first grin he cast every human feature out of his countenance, at the second he simulated
 the face of a spout, at the third that of a baboon, at the fourth the head of a bass viol and at the fifth a pair of nut crackers." Addison adds that a comely wench whom he had wooed in vain for more than five years was so charmed with his grins that she married him the following week.

Bites as Required.

He was trying to sell a dog, a bandy legged brute, with features calculated to stop a motorcar, and the old lady
 did not seem averse to buying one.
 Their ideas as to the brute's value scarcely corresponded, however, and there was little prospect of agreement,
 when suddenly the lady demanded:

"Will he bite?"

"Only his meat, mum," responded the fancier.

"Oh, but I wanted one for tramps."

"Tramps is his meat, mum," was the artful reply, and there was a deal, after all.—Exchange.

Disorder.

I distrust both the intellect and morality of people to whom disorder is of no consequence. What surrounds us reflects more or less that which is within us. The mind is like one of those dark lanterns which in spite of everything still throw some light around. If our tastes did not reveal our character they would be no longer tastes, but instincts.—Emile Souvestre.

Why Not Say "Woman?"

Whenever one has occasion to mention the most remarkable sex of the human species one is confronted by the pertinacious fact that there is no general term to describe the subject of one's dissertations except the unlovely
 and almost meaningless term "female." That term is altogether too general. It includes cows, hens and all other beings of that gender. Some word is needed that will express the female of the human species and nothing else. She who orders the universe and makes planets and suns and stars worth while ought to have a name of her own and one worthy of her. We call upon the nations of the world to devote themselves for a time to this really important task.

Tentative.

Their teacher had lately become engaged, and all the girls were tremendously interested—naturally. Everybody wanted to see the ring, and more than one was grievously disappointed
 in the size and splendor of the token.
 One ten-year-old maiden considered it critically and then remarked:

"It's mighty small, ain't it? Does that mean that you haven't really quite made up your mind to take him?"—
 New York Post.

Against Additional Expense.

Young Mrs. Green (to neighbor)—I'm having such trouble keeping our food.
 I bought a real nice looking refrigerator, but it doesn't seem to work well at all. Neighbor—Do you keep ice enough in it? Mrs. Green—Ice! I hope you don't think, after spending all that money on a refrigerator, we'd go to the additional expense of buying ice.—Boston Transcript.

Truss Torture

Once Thought Necessary, but Now Your Search for Relief is Ended. Wonderful Method Retains Rupture Without Knife, Danger or Pain.

J. Y. EGAN, Specialist of Toronto

Old-fashioned truss torture is no longer necessary. Galling, slipping trusses and barbarous methods of treating rupture are done away with by the wonderful invention of a specialist who has devoted fifty years to this one affliction. The marvelous new EGAN "CURATRUS" gives to the ruptured instant relief, rest and security where all others fail. It stops all irritation and restores every part to its natural position as soon as it is used and for all time and old style trusses are thrown away.

"EGAN'S CURATRUS" cures are absolutely without operation and the cost is small.

Multitudes of cured men, women and children testify. Also endorsed by many physicians.

Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Nothing complicated, no pain or irritation, but just a natural retentive method.

Immediate relief guaranteed. No fakes or lies—just straight business. Do not lay this aside, or delay, but tear off free coupon now.

The Red Cross Society

A novel entertainment, in aid of the Red Cross Society, took place in the Collegiate Institute last week, when the pupils of C. L. and the Commercial Rooms, gave a display of Art and Physical Training, interspersed with songs, recitations, piano and violin selections.

The pupils of Miss Baker, specialist in Physical Culture, gave several illustrations of the work, which showed careful training. The folk dances were greatly appreciated, as were also the Wand and Dum Bell exercises. This branch of study develops strong bodies and minds, and creates ease and grace, through the rhythm of motion.

The Art Display, under the management of Miss Locklin, Art Specialist, reflects great credit on the work done in our Collegiate. There were charcoal drawings, pencil drawings, pastel work and scenes in water color, which give promise of not a few young artists among the graduates of the N. C. I.

From the dainty refreshments served by some bright girls of the school one would judge that Domestic Science also was on the curriculum, although the writer has not yet learned the name of the specialist in that department.

The Red Cross is very grateful to Mr. McLean, Principal of the Collegiate, and to his worthy assistants, for their continued help, financially, and we are again pleased to acknowledge a further donation of $26.54, the proceeds of this entertainment.

We are deeply indebted to Miss Irene Cowan for 200 copies of a beautiful poem, composed by herself, a copy of the poem being enclosed in each of the Christmas stockings. Miss Cowan gave the Red Cross a similar donation last year, and her kindness is greatly appreciated.

We also wish to thank Miss N. Mc-beds in ordinary times for 1140 patients. In times of stress it is capable of expansion to 2290 beds. Etaples is the largest of hospital centres. Within a radius of three miles 35,000 beds are available.

There seems no prospect of getting home. The end of the war seems as remote as ever, and with the increasing difficulty of getting staffs for the hospitals over here, one would have to have pretty strong reasons for thinking of leaving before the end is reached.

I trust that you keep well and busy.

Yours sincerely,

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the "U. E. Loyalist" Chapter, I.O.D.E.

Having decided that we should follow the precedent of the past two years in sending a remembrance at Christmas in the shape of a parcel containing socks and other little necessary articles, and the Chapter Christmas card of good wishes, to all the men from Napanee on active service, or in hospital on military or naval duty in England, Canada or elsewhere within the Empire; our members have been very busy during the past two weeks with this patriotic duty. We are glad to state, that through the energy and capability of Mrs. R. G. H. Travers, who most kindly acted as Convenor of the committee for this object, at great personal inconvenience, but, notwithstanding many drawbacks and the need of haste, has most successfully accomplished this work, with the faithful co-operation of the members of the Chapter and Committee, as all the parcels have now been forwarded.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to Mrs. Travers and these ladies for the fine patriotic spirit they have shown in this work, and through their generous donations for the same.

The Committee of Women's Patriotic Service, etc., beg to call the attention of its members and all interested, to the fact that on Thursday next, the 22nd Nov., the ladies of the Riverdale Rural Telephone Line will serve afternoon tea at our work-room at which time a shower will be held for Comfort Bags and Housewives, which are greatly needed in our Hospitals, the demand being far greater than the supply.

The articles required for the shower are as follows: Towelling, wash cloths, soap hair brushes, toothpaste, tooth brushes, combs, small pencils, writing pads, envelopes, notebooks, tooth-ache plasters, khaki leather boot laces, playing cards, khaki handkerchiefs, shaving brushes, pipes, cigarettes, tobacco in tins, or Myrtle Navy plug, bachelors buttons, gum, chocolate in bars, small testaments of separate copies. Do not

NO TIME FOR HUCKSTE

Canada Cannot Ignore the Sacrifices of the Dependents of our Soldiers Making.

"Some women, whose husbands at the front, have more money when they are at home."

So say unthinking persons asked to give and give liberal Canadian Patriotic Fund.

The answer should come and quickly:—"Why should we who are giving their husbands country be as well off, or better? They are struggling along, with large families of child anxiety about the fate of bands gnawing at their hearts hour of the day. Any money come tidings that the bread gone forever. Are we to reward women with the smallest pit will keep body and soul together."

It is, in business affairs, a rule that the more hazardous work the higher the pay. Weeks ago the men working Quebec Bridge demanded a large increase in wages because of the risk involved in placing span in position. The result that the risk was a real one much more certain are the this great war? Every Canadian carries its burden of sorrow. And yet these heroes who are fighting for us far less than majority of them would be still in civil life.

Are we going to stint it while at the same time ourselves behind the men wives have sent to the front?

Look at the subject from point of view. Even if the do not mourn their husbands how many will find the living soldiers are financial rather than financial asset Quebec or Halifax when a man is laden with our brave lad and battered. Look at these figures, and then picture that lies before the mothers who with loving tireless hands will have to these poor fellows till death part.

And thus picturing it which one of us will say women who are facing this must be dealt with, by Canada, in the spirit of this in the market-place.

The following letter from Dr. Etherington tells of the destination of the Lennox and Addington Motor Ambulance.

No. 7 Can. Gen. Hospital,
October 25th, 1916.

Dear Dr. Vrooman:—

Until recently I have been unable to get any trace whatever of the Ambulance shipped from Montreal in November last, for the use of this Hospital.

A short time ago I was in Etaples inspecting the Hospital, which we are about to take over, and seeing a large convoy of Canadian Red Cross Cars there, I took the opportunity of looking them over, and found amongst them, an ambulance donated by the Red Cross workers of the County of Lennox and Addington. This of course, is the car which we have been trying to trace. It is in first-class order and forms one of a large convoy of McLaughlin cars used at the Etaples base.

We are all packed up and awaiting orders to move. The weather is such here that it is not possible to carry on under canvas. We are moving into a hut Hospital at Etaples with khaki handkerchiefs, shaving brushes, pipes, cigarettes, tobacco in tins, or Myrtle Navy plug, bachelors buttons, gum, chocolate in bars, small testaments of separate gospels. Do not forget our work-room is open every Thursday and Saturday afternoon, until 5.30 o'clock. Come and bring your friends.

METHODS OF EDUCATION.

A Plea For Fewer Studies and Longer Time Devoted to Them.

The defect of American education is diffuseness. The children are bothered and confused by being dragged across the surfaces of too many studies in a day. All of our schools, both public and private, and all our universities and colleges suffer from this same national vice, which is a vice in the American character, a weakness in our temperament. It ought to be met and corrected in every field of life.

What we need is depth. Depth can be imparted through the teaching of anything. It can be imparted through Latin grammar, through handwriting, through carpenter work, through arithmetic or history. The one element required is time. Depth cannot be imparted quickly or in many subjects at once. Leisure is necessary—a slowing down, a taking of things, not easily, but slowly, determinedly, patiently, as if there were plenty of time and nothing else counted.

This is the road to rapid and brilliant work, and there is no other. The smallest children should be set on this road and guided and governed and helped and slaved over by the best of your masters. One subject understood means the world mastered. My friend Frederick Mather of Yale puts the thing as follows:

"If one of our small colleges should, after the manner of the English colleges, devote itself to a few old fashioned subjects, such as Latin and Greek, and some kind of history and philosophy, and should really teach these things, its graduates would soon be so famous and so eminent that banks and railroads would be clamoring for them at the college doors."

The epigram summarizes the present needs in American education.—John J. Chapman in Atlantic Monthly.

Foot of the Fly.

You have seen a boy use what he calls a "sucker," a round, flat piece of leather, which is soaked in water and flattened against a stone so that all the moisture between the stone and the leather is pressed out. He picks up a brick with a string attached to the leather. Since there is no air between the leather and the stone the atmosphere presses the leather so firmly against the stone that the stone can be picked up by the leather.

A fly has suckers on his feet, the Popular Science Monthly explains, which act very much on the same principle. As soon as he puts down a foot he automatically squeezes the air out between it and the surface upon which he is walking. The atmosphere therefore presses him against the ceiling or wall.

TIME AND THE CLOCKS.

Curious Contradictions That Spring
From Our Present Methods.

The paradox of time, reckoned as we have come into the habit of reckoning it, by which a cablegram that leaves England at noon is received instantly in India at 5:30 p. m. and in New York at 7 a. m., has long since been discarded by astronomers and mariners. To these the time is always Greenwich time, and it is on Greenwich time that the wireless signals of all the world are based since the international time conference which met in Paris in 1912 declared that "the universal time shall be that of Greenwich."

The Scientific American analyzes the paradox and prophesies that the day will come when all the world will have but one standard time. We should then abandon our time zones, with their strangely irregular boundaries based upon the exigencies of railroad systems and political frontiers and the "curious fiction of the international date line could be given up."

"It would at first seem strange to the New Yorker to begin work at 4 a. m. instead of 9 a. m. and dine at 2 p. m. instead of 7 p. m.," says the Scientific American, "but as these changes would be merely nominal and involve no dislocation of his habits with respect to daylight and darkness he would soon become accustomed to them."

As things are now we are so familiar with such contradictions as receiving a telegram four or five hours earlier than it was sent and finding it 7 o'clock on one side of a street when it is 8 o'clock on the other that they do not strike us as strange. Yet now is always and everywhere now, no matter what we may call it. When it is now in New York it is now in Calcutta and in London. "Call it what you like, the time remains identical."

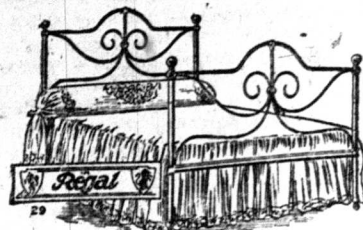

We have inherited our ideas of time from ancestors whose only clock was the sun and who divided the day into twelve hours between sunrise and sunset. In summer these were very long hours and in winter very short. How perplexed a Greek or Roman horologist would have been near one of the poles where his "hours" would have been as long as many modern days! With clocks numbered from 1 to 24 we could abolish "a. m." and "p. m." as several countries have already done. "Noon" at any place would be when the sun was at the meridian, and it would not matter in the least what clock time coincided with it. Today in the United States the only places at which noon and 12 o'clock exactly coincide are those precisely on the meridian. For example, when it is "noon" in Florida it is 1 p. m. just across the border in Georgia and when it is "noon" in Georgia it is only 11 a. m. in Florida. Similar conditions exist in many places.

Garlic In the Milk.

As to milk diluted by the light diet of the cow, what is this compared with the garlic to which any one at breakfast in Italy in spring is subject without warning? The mere tourist is no doubt guarded by a taster in the hotel keeper's service, but the resident may any morning find his milk or his butter or both made impossible by a flavor more rank than any onion. The Italian cow evidently loves the garlic plant and inconsiderately feasts upon it, with

RISE, DECLINE AND FALL OF GEN. SIR SAM HUGHES.

Lieutenant-General Sir Sam Hughes is sixty-three years of age. They have been years of trip-hammer energy Born at Darlington, Durham county, graduating at the Normal School and the University of Toronto, he pushed through a kaleidoscope of vocations—teacher, athlete, lecturer, editor, soldier, politician and Minister of Militia. He set out on an academic career as a public school teacher, and subsequently as lecturer in English and history in Toronto Collegiate Institute, earning at the same time a reputation as a boxer, a lacrosse player and a devotee of other strenuous forms of athleticism. The monotony of professional work irked, and the young lecturer broke out in journalism, where there seemed more promise of action. For twelve years he remained editor and proprietor of the Lindsay Warder.

TAKES UP SOLDIERING.

Meantime he joined the volunteer militia and rose to the rank of Lieutenant of the 45th regiment. In 1897, off his own bat, he tendered to the Imperial Government the services of the regiment to proceed to any part of the globe on active service. Less than two years after this offer the South African war broke out, and Colonel Hughes, seeing a chance for real action, lost no time in reaching the front, participated in engage-

BEGINNING OF THE END.

It was the beginning of the end for the Minister of Militia. He began to lose ground with his own following. Conservatives, in Parliament and out of Parliament, commenced to whisper things about him. By-and-bye they spoke them right out. His own Cabinet colleagues, as he himself became aware, were "getting after" him. Put believing himself secure in the support of Premier Borden, he went ahead in his old arrogant way, and the insurrection continued to spread. He fought boldly and deliberately with all who stood in his path, and professed confidence in his ability to win out and "get even" with all his traducers, from the highest to the lowest.

Economical.

A good story is related of an English theatrical manager who by thrift and hard work had amassed a fortune.
Previous to the production of one play
the stage carpenters had to repair a trap, and the head carpenter went to the manager and informed him that it could not be done in the dark.

"Well, lad, thee won't have t' gas," answered the manager. "Here, tak'
this and buy a candle."

And he handed him a halfpenny.
The carpenter pleaded that they wanted two in order to get sufficient light.

"How long will t' job take thee?"
asked the manager.

"About ten minutes," was the reply.
"Then cut t' candle in two," was the answer. "Thee won't have any more money."

Identified.

At a very fashionable and equally expensive tailor shop about town, a certain middle aged out of town customer discovered that he lacked sufficient change to pay for his humble purchase, a pair of gray gloves.

"May I charge them?" he asked. "I find I haven't my checkbook with me."

"What was the name?" demanded
the rather displeased tailor in peremp-tory manner.

He was told the name and address.

"Oh, that's all right, sir," exclaimed
the tailor, now beaming with exaggerated affability. "Your son trades
here."

Political Secrets.

Lord Morley tells a story of how a great political secret was kept by three poor Irish journalists. During the preparation of the home rule bill of 1886 Parnell asked Lord Morley for a draft of its main provisions for submission to half a dozen of his confidential colleagues. The draft was given, duly returned, and not a word leaked out. "Three of the men to whom I showed the draft were newspaper men," said Parnell, "and they were poor men, and any newspaper
would have given them £1,000 for it.
No wonderful virtue you may say. But how many of your house of commons
would believe it?"—London Answers.

The Thrill of Being Wet.

There is something rudimentary and fundamental about having water splashed down upon one and getting completely and deliciously wet—not lamp, not moist, but wet, wringing wet. You yourself when a child never enjoyed anything so much as your first lrenching in an unforeseen and unavoidable rainstorm—the thrill of being wet, the cool drive of the water on your nose, into your sleeves and down your neck, and the joyous shush of soaked, waterlogged boots. Even the sedium of being rubbed with alcohol, dandied up and warned you would watch your death did not diminish the event. You voted it better than the time you fell off the boat dock; it lasted onger.—Atlantic Monthly.

Less than two years after this offer
the South African war broke out, and Colonel Hughes, seeing a chance for real action, lost no time in reaching the front, participated in engagements, fought with senior officers, and subsequently published a series of characteristic letters describing his exploits.

IN POLITICS SINCE 1891.

He entered the political arena in 1891, meeting defeat as conservative candidate for North Victoria. The following year, in a bye-election, he was successful, and in 1904 ran for Victoria and Haliburton, which seat
he has since held. When the Conservative party was successful in 1911
Premier-elect Borden chose him for Minister of Militia, the post which he has now resigned.

LOVED THE LIMELIGHT.

The dominant, self-assertive personality of the man found full play in his administrative capacity even before the present war broke out. He sped all over the Dominion, raining
drill-sheds, armouries and rifle ranges, wherever he stopped. He loved the limelight. He possessed a sublime self-confidence. No soft pedal was attached to his activities, no grey entered into his mental make-up.

WAS HATED OR LOVED.

He was loved or hated—and loved or hated in return. He flouted the higher-ups; he scored subordinates.
He was lavish and outspoken in praise or blame. He battered his way through Parliamentary criticism
as with a club. He was contemptuous of criticism, but withal, possessed a shrewd appreciation of the benefits of publicity. "Better be anathematized than ignored," quoth Theodore Roosevelt on one occasion
when a senator protested his granting interviews by hostile newspapers.
Sam Hughes subscribed to the Roosveltian doctrine.

STRODE INTO THE WAR.

Then came the war. It was meat and drink to Canada's Minister of Militia. It furnished possibilities for activities on a mammoth and spectacular scale. He went at it with enthusiastic frenzy. The call to arms was immediately followed by the creation of Valcartier Camp, and the assembling of volunteers from all parts of the Dominion. In the midst of the calcium of those early call-to-arms days strode Sam Hughes.

ODOR OF SCANDALS.

But achievements in organizing the camp and directing the rapidly-growing army were dulled by ill-advised and at times reckless speech, by the selection of men of the J. Wesley Allison stamp as "guides, counsellors and friends," by the odor of scandal in the purchase of horses, boots, binoculars, and by a general contempt for the public attitude on the part of the Minister. Mr. F. E. Carvell, M.P. for Carleton, N.B., began to get after the man at the head. Carvell had a belt laden with scalps, and is celebrated as a relentless pursuer of graft and grafters. He made no charges directly against Hughes, but he set out sternly and relentlessly after Allison and the men Hughes had extolled, and after much of his administration.
The Minister of Militia had Premier Borden at his back, and for a time
the Premier rallied his party majority to fight off the attack. Then Carvell launched his famous Kyte charges.
Conservatives of the rank and file refused to "stay put." A judicial investigation was forced—and Allison was condemned.

ODIUM OF CAMP BORDEN.

Camp Borden was probably the last straw. Rightly or wrongly, a storm of public criticism and displeasure followed the premature peopling of this location—named after the Premier —with soldiers in training. On one occasion the volunteers themselves came near forcible protest, and throughout Ontario, in the homes, its very name became anathema. The storm broke about the head of Sir
Sam Hughes and Sir Robert Borden,
and the rapidly-waning confidence in the Borden administration was ascribed more or less directly to General Hughes.

SPOILED BY ADULATION.

The only man who refused to recognize the situation was the man immediately concerned. Sir Sam went his way. Like most men of his stamp
he had become surrounded by men,
civil and military, who worked overtime in eulogistic adulation and exaggeration. They publicly proclaimed him, placed him with Kitchener, Wellington, Napoleon, ascribed every Canadian military achievement to him, and made him ridiculous by the fulness of their flattery. Thus encouraged, Sir Sam was not likely to curtail his self-assertive outspoken-ness nor his supreme confidence in himself. His latest Toronto speeches, criticizing the administration of the British War Office and the direction of troops on the field, caused his real friends to shake their heads in sorrow and regret. The end was not unexpected.

Give it to him, says the Borden Government, when the deputation approaches asking for a lower price on bread, only to be quoted a higher price on scorpions.

This is what happened to a Toronto deputation the other day. It came to Ottawa asking for action—something to bring meat and bacon and eggs and butter and a hundred other things to reason—the last thing, of course, the Government wanted to do. So the Government passed the buck. Bob Rogers pulled his most winning smile, also Mr. Crothers, also that double-salaried patriot, Judge Doherty—in fact they all smiled and showed their teeth, which are in excellent condition, to make short work of the High Cost of Living, but they refused to get busy: "What can we do?" they asked. "Let the municipality have a little investigation of its own. Nail the offender Pring his name here and then we'll see.

Of course this is begging the question. The Borden Government has conducted all the investigations that are necessary. It has all the information it needs and all the power to act that can be conferred by the laws of Canada. Moreover, it has the names of the chief offenders and, indeed, has some of the chief offenders right there on the spot in Ottawa who are supposed to save tave the country in an exalted capacity, but who are supposed to serve the on their own interests. There is no telling what a panic-stricken Govern might do if that eagle eye were removed.

A Government which is owned body and soul by the food monopolizers cannot complain that it doesn't know anything about the business methods of the men who put it where it is. Ever since 1911 the Borden Government has taken orders from its masters and the results are plain to be seen. In two jumps the tariff has gone up forty per cent., and the British preference has practically disappeared. The country is delivered, gagged and bound, to the food monopolizers to do with it what they will. What they will, now that the tariff can hardly be put up another notch, is to increase prices and squeeze the consumer out of his last penny. Prices are so high right now that many decent citizens will be only half fed, half clothed and half warm this winter, but they will go higher. The last stage of privation has not been reached yet. The food extortioners reckon to make several more squeezes before the Borden Government gets what is coming to it at the next general election.

Wages, apparently high, are really low, considering the price of commodities and the value of the dollar. No matter what the workman earns the Borden Government's food monopolizing friends reckon to take it all out of him. His wages don't really belong to him. They pass from pocket to hand—to the hand that feeds him at prices which are in many cases higher than in war-stricken Europe.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER

As time passes it becomes more and more evident that the High Cost of Living is largely the High Cost of Legarthy on the part of those in authority. The Borden Government has, or should have, at this moment three reports on the High Cost of Living, but acts on none of them.

One very exhaustive report in two large volumes drawn up by Mr. Coates, the Dominion Statistician, before the war changed the face of affairs, was printed in blue book form a year after the war started. The Economic Commission, of which Mr. J. W. Flavelle, captain of the great meat packing industry of Canada, and chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board, is a leading member, was started out on a similar quest about a year ago, but so far nothing has been heard of it. Silence gives consent, as it were. The third report collected by the late Dr. C. C. James, Professor Maclean and Mr. R. W. Coates, three of the most expert investigators in Canada, must be in hand now, but it has not seen the light.

Granted that the Economic Commission has not yet lifted up its voice and doesn't intend to, so long as Mr. Flavelle is in its midst, the Government still possesses two reports on the High Cost of Living which must supply the requisite data for a comparison of before-the-war and since-the-war prices. In a word, the Government has plenty of information to go ahead on and the only thing that lacks now is the willingness to legislate against the forestallers and food monopolizers who are the Government's chief friends.

The Borden Government cannot plead that it has no power to regulate prices without the ratification of Parliament, because it took this plenary power at the beginning of the war with the full consent of the Parliament and people. There is reason to believe that the Government assumed this power, not to regulate its friends, the food monopolizers, but to head off further attempts on the part of Parliament to get at the offenders. As long as the Government has the power to put a stop to the evil and fails to do so, the food usurers are quite safe, because nobody else has power to put a stop to the evil and fails to do so, the food usurers are quite safe, because nobody else has the power to touch them.

Sooner than make use of the powers of high, low and middle justice which reside in it, sooner than make its forestalling friends behave, the Government, ignoring the mass of information already in its possession, appoints a cabinet committee, consisting of Messrs. Rogers, Crothers and Doherty, to conduct another dilatory and indifferent investigation into the high cost of living, which it confidently hopes will outlast its tenure of existence, if not the period of the war. The Cabinet trio may be relied on to jolly the thing along until the final catastrophe. After us the deluge—such is the motto of the Borden Government. It realizes that its days are numbered. Wherefore it intends to have a good time and moreover to allow the High Cost of Living kings who put it where it is to have a good time too. So far as the High Cost of Living kings are concerned, their idea of a good time is to bleed the people white. When the Borden Government goes out of office it will be found that a comparatively small group of human hogs have got all the money in the country.

That the Government aims to do nothing in the matter except to mark time is shown by its answers to the High Cost of Living deputations, which visit it ever and anon. Hope springs eternal in the human heart. These poor fellows come, perhaps, once a month to Ottawa with the idea that the Government will do something and all the Government does is to hand out another gob of soft soap. Of course this game can't go on forever. The deputations get wise and even good Tories begin to show anger at the bunk this Government of confidence men tries to put across.

In short, the public is in a rage and to abate that rage the Government has studied a new turn. Its latest trick is to pass the buck. Passing the buck is now one of the best things the Borden Government does. Passing the buck is an old trick of side-stepping statesmen—it simply means shifting the responsibility.

Once again nickel has come to the fore in a startling sensational way, and once again the Hearst government, which considered almost as a joke, the repeated efforts of the Liberals in the last session of the Legislature to bring the seriousness of the situation before the country, must be in great consternation. Some times it looks as if the nickel situation is not quite so bad for the Hearst government as at other times, but always it is sufficiently bad not only to worry the government, but to cause great unrest and dissatisfaction among the people.

This time it is a direct statement by the Providence Journal, a newspaper which has had valuable and reliable news in regard to the war before this, that 300 tons of nickel are loaded on the German submarine "Deutschland" ready to sail from the United States for Germany, and according to the Journal "the metal which was purchased from the International Nickel Company reached that corporation from Sudbury, Canada, through the Canadian Copper Company." The newspaper says that the shipment consists of nine carloads of nickel averaging 40 tons to a car. The facts of the case are given in great detail, showing the efforts made from many sides to conceal the sources of the supply and also to conceal the nature of the cargo.

It will be remembered that the Opposition during the last session of Legislature, on no fewer than five different occasions, brought up the nickel question, urging the government to take every possible precaution to prevent Germany getting Ontario nickel and pointing out the illegal arrangement, made by the present Prime Minister himself when Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, which allowed the International Nickel Company to escape the great bulk of taxation which they would have had to pay under the Act.

Nickel was one of the chief issues in the South West Toronto bye-election with its crushing defeat for the government sustained on that occasion.

LEATHER FROM THE

The Product of Shark, Sturgeon and Angel Fish Skins.

It is a curious fact that much of leather are got from sea animals, some of which are very beautiful. The skin of sharks is a beautiful gray or bluish color. The seams of leather are finely grained leather shows many tiny prickles a way. This property of shark skins is especially valuable to the manufacturer of shagreen. Since it is at once tough and easy to work it can be used for many purposes decorative effects are desired.

In spite of its lumpy armor like appearance it furnishes a valuable material for leather. It has been found when the bony plates are removed the patterns remain on the skin the patterns of alligator seal on alligator leather, a circle that adds greatly to the value of the product. From the sturgeon, which is abundant on our Pacific coast and in the great lakes we get a tough leather which is used for the making of leather belting for machine. It is said that the lacing frequently wears the belting itself.

There is found in Turkish waters a strikingly unattractive fish called angel fish, classed among the sharks. This fish yields a high quality of green leather, which is used in the Ottoman do

THE DARK HORSE

How the Name Was Applied to a Political Possibility.

A novel written by Disraeli, Beaconsfield, entitled "The Duke" and published in 1831, gave a description of a horse which the following sentence "A dark horse which I had thought of and which the Duke James had never even observed rushed past the grand sweeping triumph."

This was only a horse race gave prominence to the fact that a dark horse had not attracted any notice came in a winner.

This may have been the origin of the phrase "a dark horse," which in American politics, means not prominently considered a candidate when a convention meets for its earlier ballots, but who develops unexpected strength.

A notable case in point was James A. Garfield in the 19th national convention of 1880. He was first ballot for president he received a single vote, but he received votes on the second ballot, on the twentieth ballot, fifty on the thirty-fifth ballot and was elected by 399 on the thirty-sixth ballot.

THE BILINGUAL DECISION

Widespread public interest has been shown in the decisions of the Privy Council in the bilingual question in Ontario.

There were two separate propositions before the Privy Council, the validity of Regulation 17, governing the teaching of French in the schools and the status of the Ottawa School Commission, established by the Government.

On the first question, the decision is that the regulation is valid, and the Legislative has control over language teaching in all the schools of the province public and separate. On the second point the Privy Council has decided that the appointment of the Ottawa School Commission, which took from the Ottawa School trustees the management of their schools, was unconstitutional, and therefore not allowed.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS THE "WOBBLES."

Increasing signs of weakness are betraying themselves in the Ontario government. It seems to be absolutely impossible for them to have any firmly fixed policy on anything. The difference is all the more noticeable when contrasted with the firmness of Sir James Whitney. There is something almost pathetic in the wreck of the Conservative party and organization in this province. Governments come and governments go—and the going of the Conservative government in Ontario is rapid.

Nowhere is the "wobble" greater than on the prohibition issue. The most saillful prophet could not forecast what the members of the government will think about it the week after next.

During the South West Toronto campaign, the slant of the government was against prohibition. The Prime Minister himself, although he has steadied since then, gave his endorsement to a wine-and-beer license candidate. The Toronto News rocked the boat still more and Lucas made his famous "ear to the ground" speech, in which he associated his "friend Ferguson."

Now there is another turn of the wheel. Ferguson himself declares "the temperance act is here to stay without varying one jot or tittle until the war ends." People naturally ask, "What will the government say next?"

If there is anything the public likes in a government it is firmness and courage. The Hearst government is neither firm nor courageous, and their break-up is coming with a rush.

MR. ROWELL IN MONTREAL.

Mr. Rowell has been visiting Montreal, where he made three addresses on the war. At the Montreal Reform Club, where a banquet was tendered in his honor, he spoke of "England and France's efforts in the war." At St. James Church he spoke on "National Service," and described also his visit to the fleet. Before the Montreal Canadian Club, he told of his stay at the Canadian front.

AFRICAN ELEPHANTS.

They May Be In Captivity, but They Are Never In Subjection.

For many reasons the chase of the elephant stands at the apex of sport. As a man killer in open combat he ranks with the lion and the African buffalo. He is the only beast that fears no other. While he will almost invariably run from the scent of man he is as invariably ready to attack on the slightest provocation. Fear does not exist for him. His overwhelming bulk, power, speed and intelligence make him supreme beyond the range of rivalry.

As though this were not enough to establish his pre-eminence, he alone carries a trophy which is one of the staple products of the industrial world. The value of ivory rises. It never fluctuates. Nor is this all. In the mind of the east the elephant is intimately associated with dignity, pomp, pageantry and kingship. But in the mind of the native African he is king—a king in his own right.

In this regard let it be affirmed that no elephant born in Africa has ever docilely paced a hippodromed stage, trundled a circus wagon of taken children for a ride in the park. Those sleep-walking cattle known to the American public as elephants come from India and are mere distant cousins to the king. You may have seen the African elephant in captivity, but never in subjection. Chain him to the floor behind iron bars, and after ten years he is still quick to throw muck in the face of the man that jeers at him.—George Agnew Chamberlin in Century.

CHLOROFORM IN SURGERY.

The Horrors That Were Stopped by Its Use as an Anaesthetic.

Sir James Simpson, who was connected with the medical department of Edinburgh university, if not actually the discoverer of chloroform, was at any rate the first to introduce its employment as an anaesthetic into surgical practice. This was in 1848.

Previously all operations were performed without anaesthetics, the patient being drugged with whisky and held down by strong men while the operation was performed. No medical discovery ever did more to alleviate human suffering.

Sir James is generally given credit for the actual discovery of chloroform, but it is stated in some works that it was discovered some years previous to his first experiments by an American doctor named Guthrie and by a French physician named Souberian. In any case, it was Dr. Simpson who proved its great value as an anaesthetic, and the room in which he made his first experiments still exists in Edinburgh.

The story goes, that he tried the chloroform on himself and two medical friends. They proved its efficacy by simultaneously falling beneath the table. Sir James had considerable prejudice to overcome before chloroform was adopted generally by the medical profession, it being denounced at one time as dangerous to health, morals and religion. — Pearson's Weekly.

ORIGIN OF "BUNCOMBE."

How a Colonel's Name Came to Be a Term of Reproach.

Whenever I pick up a copy of the Congressional Record and numerous other publications and read the irrelevant speeches therein reported I sigh for the memory of Colonel Edward Buncombe, "Girard" writes in the Philadelphia Ledger.

Through no fault of the gallant gentleman himself, there clings to his name an unpleasant significance which many of our brave public men do naught to mitigate. Indeed, if there be such a thing as one shade's taking vengeance upon another in the future world Colonel Buncombe will at least pull out Felix Walker's tongue.

It was all Walker's fault that "buncombe" became a term of reproach, and the incident which made it so happened a century ago.

Walker represented in congress a district of North Carolina of which Buncombe county was a part. The county had been named away back in 1791 in honor of Colonel Buncombe.

Walker was one of those long distance orators who without half trying could empty the halls of congress and put them in a condition beside which the dead streets of Pompeii appear great white ways. When upbraided one day for talking about everything except the question at issue Walker used this immortal phrase:

"I am only talking for Buncombe," meaning his home county.

And so "buncombe" became a new word in our language, which has been conveniently shortened into the colloquial "bunk."

MAN'S DECREASING HEIGHT.

When Adam and Eve Walked Around They Were as Tall as Trees.

It was a French savant named Henrion who 200 years ago gave to the world authoritative statements as to the height of Adam and Eve. He said that the father of the race was 123 feet 9 inches high and Eve 118 feet 9 inches. He noted that from the creation of these enlarged editions of humanity degeneration had been rapid; that Noah was only twenty-seven, Abraham only twenty and Moses but thirteen feet in height.

According to this French authority, if the Christian dispensation had not arrested this decrease man by this time—200 years ago—would have been a mere microscopic object, and we may conclude that by our time he would not have been at all. M. Henrion did not give any explanation as to how he arrived at his estimate of the height of these ancients.

Perhaps the most gigantic story on record is that concerning an immense skeleton, said to have been in Sicily, which measured 300 feet in length. This story, however, carries its own refutation, as it is said that found beside this giant was his walking stick, which was thirty feet long and thick as a telegraph pole. A clever calculator made the estimate that a walking stick only thirty feet in length for a man who measured 300 feet would be as ridiculous as one of seven inches for a man of ordinary stature.

AN ACTOR'S REAL TRAGEDY.

Pathos of John McCullough's Last Appearance on Any Stage.

John McCullough, the tragedian, died in an insane asylum. Writing about the famous actor's last appearance on any stage, E. H. Sothern in his "Remembrances" in Scribner's says:

He went through a scene in "The Gladiator;" then he went to the last scene in "Virginius," where Virginius raves after he has killed his daughter; then to Othello's farewell speech, one he had often told me that his great master, Edwin Forrest, had only read to his own satisfaction once in his life: Oh, now, forever

Farewell the tranquil mind; farewell content!

Farewell the plumed troop and the big wars

That make ambition virtue! Oh, farewell! Farewell the neighing steed and the shrill trump,

The spirit stirring drum, the ear piercing fife,

The royal banner, and all quality, Pride, pomp and circumstance of glorious war!

And, oh, you mortal engines, whose rude throats

The immortal Jove's dread clamors counterfeit,

Farewell! Othello's occupation's gone.

It was pitiful in the extreme to hear McCullough read this at any time and trebly so now. He wandered through others of his various characters, the people about him weeping and seeking to hide their grief. At length he drifted into the part of Cardinal Richelieu.

He played the scene in the garden where Baradas, the creature of the king, comes to take Richelieu's ward away from him. He had spoken the tender speech of protection to Julie, and now Richelieu says to Joseph, who holds him up on one side while his ward assists him on the other, "Well, well, we will go home!" Here he walks feebly up the stage. Baradas, seeing how broken he is, says aside to De Beringen, "His mind and life are breaking fast." Richelieu overhears him, turns with his old fury and cries: "Irreverent ribald! If so, beware the falling ruin! I tell thee, scornor of these whitening hairs, when this snow melteth there shall come a flood. Avaunt! My name is Richelieu! I defy thee! Walk blindfold on—behind thee stalks the headsman—ah! How pale he glares—God save my country!" And he falls fainting as the act ends.

Poor McCullough went up the stage at "Well, well, we will go home." Baradas said his line, the tears streaming down his face, "His mind and life are breaking fast." McCullough threw Joseph and Julie off as he turned on Baradas and began: "Irreverent ribald! If so, beware the falling ruin," and stopped dazed.

He looked at the weeping Baradas, at Julie sobbing, at the rest of the company standing about overcome with grief and terror, and collapsed utterly.

Petrograd, the Artificial Czar's Dominion

Travelers speak of Moscow as the heart of Russia, the real Russia, and dismiss Petrograd as a of other European capitals. Petrograd seems more than a Russian, with its immense government buildings and marching along as far as the reach, broad streets and spaces.

The great stone quays, Neva, the palaces, cathedral, imperial avenues paved with grew under the hands of the serfs chained in a swamp of a tyrant and were cemented their blood, for where Petrograd sprawls for miles and miles built for giants, was not a feverish marsh a hundred years ago.

And there, where no road lead, the most desolate spot vulnerable and the most any natural center of the Empire, Peter the Great had found his capital. Twenty slaves a year for ten years by fever, cold and disease in the city of Petrograd.

Nine times the court no selves conspired to wreck city and force the court to Moscow; three times they it, and three times the czar at the doors of the palace forced them to build.

A powerful section of the party has always agitated restoration of Moscow as the heart of Russia, and it is only in the last twenty years that the population of Petrograd has not been artificially kept in the Metropolitan.

The Seal Ring.

The seal ring dates back to the days of the Old Testament, and products of the glyptic art, as gem engraving was called, were known in the most remote times. In Exodus xxviii, 17-20, mention is made of the following stones, upon which the names of the twelve children of Israel were engraved: The sardius, the topaz, the carbuncle, the emerald, the sapphire, the diamond, the ligure, the agate, the amethyst, beryl, onyx and jasper. In verse 2 of the same chapter we find mention of the engraving of signets upon the hardest stones. It is believed that the Egyptians instructed the Israelites in the art of stone engraving. The Egyptians used the lapidary's wheel and emery powder and knew the use of the diamond in engraving other hard stones. Among the Assyrian and Babylonian ruins were found fine specimens of signets on gems, many of them set in rings.

Dublin Castle.

Dublin castle has a history of over seven centuries, for it was King John who in 1204 ordered it to be built, "well fortified, with good fosses and thick walls strong enough to defend or control the city." Henry III., when about to visit Ireland in 1243, ordered the addition of a hall, "with sufficient windows and glass casements," and other improvements were made in succeeding reigns, particularly by the Duke of Clarence, son of Edward III., who as viceroy spent much money on the castle to make it convenient (as his father complained when called upon to pay) "for his sports and other pleasures."—London Standard.

Wit of Disraeli.

There is a story about Disraeli that is much like him and will give an idea of what he was at this time (1877). As he was leaving a house he asked some one to give him his arm down Piccadilly. The man, who must have been a person of some wit, said, "At such a time as this I should wish to be met by my creditors." "No," said Disraeli, "it is not at such times that your creditors meet you. Your creditors meet you when you are carrying a bundle."

Didn't Like Flattery.

Samuel Warren, the novelist, was once addressing the Duke of Wellington in terms so flattering that the duke was moved to protest.

"I am very glad we are alone, Mr. Warren," he said.

"May I ask why, my lord?" replied Warren, his vanity tickled by the seeming compliment.

"Because," was the duke's crushing reply, "any one else might think I was fool enough to believe what you are telling me."

A Story of the Bastille.

In the year 1785 a haughty noble of the ancient regime of France fell in love with a beautiful girl, the daughter of a wealthy tradesman of Paris. The latter, refusing to encourage the nobleman's passion, was soon after thrown into the Bastille. The sweet-heart of the girl, who was to have married her in a few days, dreading a like fate, made his escape to Constantinople to serve as a volunteer under the grand seigneur, leaving his intended bride secreted with a woman friend. On the outbreak of the revolution the young man returned to Paris and was the very grenadier who first mounted the breach made in the Bastille, from the dungeons of which he had the happiness of rescuing the father of his future bride.

Soap and Hard Water.

The hardness of water is measured by degrees. When a gallon contains one grain of lime it is said to have one degree of hardness. When soap is used with hard water about two and one-half ounces of it to each hundred gallons of water must be used for each degree of hardness just to overcome hardness. It combines with the lime, forming a mineral product, and not until enough soap has been dissolved to overcome all the hardness does the soap do any good for cleansing purposes.

Tobacco Famines In Sieges.

The tobacco habit has added terribly to the privations of many a siege in its last days, however much consolation it may bring at earlier stages. "The leaves of the trees were all smoked away for want of tobacco," Lady Canlun wrote home concerning the siege of Lucknow, and even bark was smoked there. In Ladysmith the men smoked dried sunflower leaves and tea leaves for many weeks before the relief. Three weeks before the end a half pound cake of black tobacco cost 45 shillings, a box of inferior cigars 15 10s. and a packet of ten good cigarettes 25 shillings.—London Globe.

Plantation of Ulster.

The "plantation of Ulster" does not refer to a plantation (farm) in the common sense of that word. It is the name that was given to the planting (settling) of Scotch and English immigrants upon the Ulster lands that had been cleared of its former Irish inhabitants by the English King James; hence the name "Scotch-Irish," the descendants of the Scotch and English settlers in the north of Ireland.

the Artificial Capital of the Czar's Dominions.
To speak of Moscow as the artificial capital of Russia, the real Russian city, is to speak of Petrograd as an imitation of European capitals. But to me it seems more characteristic of Russia with its immense facades of ornate buildings and barracks long as far as the eye can reach and streets and mighty open squares and stone quays along the palaces, cathedrals and mosques paved with cobbles and the hands of innumerable slaves in a swamp by the will of the Czar and were cemented with mortar for where Petrograd now stands for miles and miles, a city of marsh and a hundred and fifty

SOME IRISH COGNOMENS.

Meanings Attached to the Most Common of the Surnames.

The fact is not generally known that Ireland was the first country in modern Europe to enforce the adoption of surnames by law. The act prescribing their general use was passed more than a hundred years before the Anglo-Norman invasion, whereas surnames did not come into general use in England until the days of Queen Elizabeth nor in Wales till late in the seventeenth century.

There are some interesting meanings attaching to the most common of Irish names, says the London Tit-Bits. Here are a few with the curious changes of spelling that have come about since the names first originated:

Murphy came from O'Murphy, Morphey and Morphey, meaning "superior;" Kelly came from O'Kelly, Kiely, Keeley, meaning "for war;" O'Connor came from Connors, Conerty, meaning "helper;" and Dougherty from O'Doherty, Doherty, Daughaday, meaning "destroyer." It is noticeable that all Irish names at the first stage in their history had "O" before them, the first change consisting of dropping that "O." It will not be necessary therefore to repeat the name with the "O" before it.

Sullivan was originally Sillifant and Sullivan, meaning "quick sighted;" O'Donnell and McDonnell and all combinations of that name were Donald, Daniel, Dona, meaning "dark chief;" Moloney was O'Mulowney, Meloney, Mullany, meaning "thoughtful;" McCormack was O'Cormack; McCormac, McCormick, meaning "son of the crown;" Flynn was Flann, meaning "red;" Flannigan was Finnigen, meaning "druid;" Boyle was Boylan, Boland, Bolan, Boylin, meaning "benign;" O'Brian was Bryan, Bryant, Brines, Bryon, meaning "author;" Brady was McBrady, meaning "ship captain," and Macauley was O'Cawlew, McGawly, McAuly, McAuliff, Cawley, meaning "echo," or literally "son of the rock."

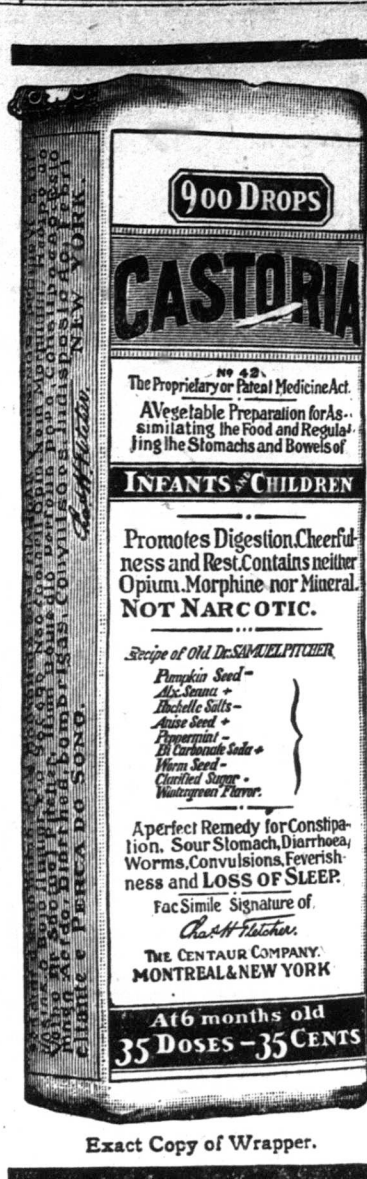

GRADING DIAMONDS.

Qualities In Stones of the First, Second and Third Water.

"A diamond of the first water should be entirely colorless and transparent, without any inclusion or flaw," says the Scientific American. "It is of the second water if it is colorless with small but unimportant faults or if it is without faults, but with some traces of color, and third water if it is colorless, but with larger faults or if it is distinctly colored. The correct valuation is therefore very difficult and often subject to the jeweler's judgment. For this reason Professor Rosiwal gives to the layman the following hints:

"The requisite in stones of the first water is perfect lack of color or, what is more highly prized, a tinge of blue. In general, beautifully colored diamonds command fabulous prices and are to be found only in the treasure vaults of princes.

"Stones of the second water are numerous. They are supposed to be microscopically pure, but almost always show some inclusions. There are oftentimes traces of yellow color in this grade, and because this can be seen best in sunlight one should never buy diamonds at night, for the prevailing light causes stones that are

HE WAS A MAN OF HABIT.

And He Couldn't Break His Routine Even to Be Agreeable.

A couple in a Broadway restaurant were engaged in a conversation which to all appearances was tender as well as confidential when an elderly man walked stolidly past thirty or more vacant tables and sat down at theirs. The couple stopped talking and looked at the man with an icy stare. But the man's mind was not in a receptive state. He calmly studied the bill of fare and ordered his meal.

The woman in the case looked desperate. "Is there no remedy?" she said to her companion.

"None apparently short of actual murder," he replied.

"We might move," she suggested.

"No; let's stick," he said. "I am going to find out why this ill-mannered pelican is butting in when there are so many vacant tables."

In slightly modified terms the question was put to the aged interloper.

"I don't mean to freeze folks out," he replied. "This is my table. I have eaten luncheon at this table every day for the last fifteen years. You don't

It is a large stone and will no doubt some time justify the amount of work that has been done on it. At present it helps six hotels, a dozen curio shops, a score of muleteers and a station master.—Christian Herald.

Dickens and Women's Clubs.

There is a certain connection between Dickens and the origin of the "women's club" movement in the United States which will interest his admirers. The New York Press club in 1868 ventured to give a dinner to him and to exclude all women workers on the newspapers of the city. The affront was felt keenly. It led straightway to the organization of a women's club called Sorosis, of which the chief members were press women, among them Jenny June Croly, Kate Field and Alice and Phoebe Cary. When He Was Bad.

It has been said that you never know
 a man till you travel with him, and certainly traveling has a tendency to bring out all the depravity innate in human nature. Out of this test, however, Benjamin Disraeli emerged with flying colors. This is what was said of him by Mrs. Austen, who, with her husband, traveled with him when he was quite a young man, as related in
 Mr. Monypenny's biography:

"Your brother," she says (the letter was addressed to Disraeli's sister), "is so easily pleased, so accommodating,
 so amusing and so actively kind that I shall always reflect upon the domestic part of our journey with the greatest pleasure. Your brother has behaved excellently, except when there is a button, or, rather, buttons, to be put on his shirt; then he is violently bad, and this happens almost daily."

Foiled Them All.

The discussion about the fitness of horse meat to eat calls to mind the story of a young man in Paris, a good many years ago, who made a wager with some friends that at a dinner he would serve one course that would be horse meat and that none of them could tell which it was. After the dinner he asked them to name the horse meat course and found that they did not agree. One named one course, one another, and so on, but they all agreed that it was a mighty good dinner.
 "Gentlemen," he said, with his thumbs
 stuck in the armbolts of his waistcoat,
 "it was all horse."

ROADS AND THEIR USES.

Likewise Their Materials, and Also Some Sarcastic Comments.

A road is a device of long standing,
 which in modern times is used for autos to wear out. Roads are also used to raise dust and taxes and kill chickens, dogs and children.

Roads are very common, almost as common as accidents. We see them everywhere. It is quite difficult, indeed, to go any distance without running across one.

Roads are made of various materials.
 In the northern part of this country
 they are made of bluestone and macadam. In the southern part they are made of mud. Of the two kinds of material the mud is likely to be more durable, which, as the Scripture so beautifully expresses it, "sticketh to one like a brother."

Roads are not always friendly with each other, and, although they can be seen constantly mingling together, they are likely to be cross. When a road enters a city it becomes puffed up with importance and is then known as a street, a boulevard or an avenue.

Life in cities, however, in spite of the society, is not always agreeable to roads, which are then likely to be afflicted with various diseases, among which we may mention gaspipeitis, telegraphitis and graftonomy.—Life.

CUTTING CORN FOR SILAGE

Proper Time Is When the Ears Are in the "Glazed Stage."

The New Jersey station draws attention to a tendency among some of the best dairymen, who realize the value of corn silage as a feed, to put their corn into the silo at such an early stage of growth that it is practically impossible to make a first class grade of silage, even though it is stored in a perfect silo. Silage cut at the right time and kept in a good silo is one of the most economical and palatable feeds which can be fed to the dairy cow. It is economical because a large amount of food nutrients can be raised to the acre in the corn crop, and these nutrients can be handled and stored in a most economical and convenient way when the corn is cut and put in the silo.

Another point which is of considerable value is the action which the corn undergoes when placed in the silo. This is a fermenting process during which the sugar in the corn is changed to several acids. This softens the fibers, makes the protein more digestible and adds desirable flavors.

The proper time for cutting corn is when the majority of the ears are in the "glazed stage." If cut for silage at an earlier period it contains such a

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Alexander Y. Reed, a Chicago business man, who has a farm forty miles out from the city, gives a practical example of up to date methods in land management.

Mr. Reed has abandoned dairying on the general principle that mixed farming pays better. He means by this that diversity of production, including the maintenance of live stock of different kinds, will give larger net returns, especially where the farmer has ready access to good markets. Mr. Reed will try direct selling to consumers.

As his plan is typical of a system which many are striving for, it is worth while to describe what he has accomplished, what the investment is as compared with other methods, how the labor and risk compare and, in a broad sense, what the adoption of mixed farming means to the nation.

Although he has quit milk production, Mr. Reed does not argue against moderate sized dairies for those who are in a position to give close personal attention to them. Soil fertility is best maintained through live stock. This fact is so well settled that no one need attempt to get away from it, but there are many kinds of live stock besides dairy cows which grow into money fast. The movement which his kind of farming represents is simply to get away from exclusive dairying or exclusive grain production and make a well balanced diversity program.

"A landowner wishing to adopt mixed farming," said he, "has first of all to consider the maintenance of soil fertility and the acreage earnings of his place. There can be no success worth while unless the land is kept up to a high standard and its earnings are reasonably good. It has been painfully demonstrated over and over again in the past year or two that we should not stake everything on a single enter-

Unless much live stock is fed upon the farm there will not be sufficient manure to supply the amount of vegetable matter which the soil needs to keep it in the best condition and in the highest state of fertility. In such case the most practicable substitute is to grow crops to turn back to the soil. There are two ways of furnishing such green manure. A crop may be produced during the regular growing season and turned back to the soil instead of being harvested, or a green manure crop may be grown with the regular harvest crop and left on the ground after the harvest, or it may be sown after the regular crop has been removed and allowed to get its growth during the fall and winter months. In the latter case it is called a cover crop. Cover crops, especially on clay soils, are very effective in preventing erosion. They also serve to preserve plant food left in the soil by the regular crop which would otherwise leach away during the fall and winter. In addition to supplying the soil with vegetable matter, legumes grown for green manures greatly increase its nitrogen content, a fact which should not be overlooked. Among the crops most commonly used for green manuring are rye, wheat, oats and barley, and of leguminous crops cowpeas, soy beans, crimson clover, red clover, sweet clover, bur clover, Japanese clover and vetch.

Autumn Crop of Spinach

Repeated sowings during will supply this vegetable in cold weather. Select a piece of ground. A tomato bed from which the crop gathered makes good spinach. Give a liberal dressing of spade deeply and pulverize well.

Sow the seeds thinly in rows to eighteen inches apart. The custom is to let spinach compact row, thinning out as they are pulled for use. Seedlings will be obtained by thinning as soon as they are enough to stand six to eight apart in the row, permitting room for each plant to full. The large plants resulting more attractive and easier to pull.

One ounce of seed is sufficient for 100 feet of row. The seed is covered with an inch of soil. Gardeners sow twelve pounds to the acre.

VALUE OF DISKING

A Good General Practice at the End of the Year.

Disking the surface soil before for all crops and at the end of the year is good general practice for the Farm Progress. It is a practice for preparing a seed bed in the spring and is good on cornstalk ground, a implement cuts the stalks lengths for easy covering decay in the soil.

But the greatest value of disking before plowing lies in that the plowed field has high percentage of sugar that the result will be silage containing such a large amount of acid that it will be unpalatable. It is much better to make the mistake of cutting too late rather than too early, as the only objection to late cutting is the loss of moisture, with the result that the stalks contain too much air and are liable to mold. This may be remedied by the addition of water while the silo is being filled.

Corn when cut during the "silk stage" contains practically half the amount of dry matter and food nutrients as corn that is cut for the silo from seven to fourteen days after the kernels have begun to glaze. This emphasizes the importance of allowing the ears to get well glazed before the corn is cut for silage.

Why Salt Causes Thirst.

Salt has been described as a natural element of the blood in about the same proportion as in the water of the ocean. Under general conditions we do not feel the existence of salt in our bodies because its effect is counteracted by a due proportion of water.

When we eat an excessive amount of salt thirst is created by the demand of nature that we also take a proportionate amount of water and dilute the salt to its proper relative amount. Any food that tends to absorb the moisture of the body will cause thirst for the same reason—that our physical welfare requires a balanced quantity of water.

WOMAN SUFFERAGE.

Its War Time Aspect.

London, Eng. The women of England are doing their duty. They are taking care of the wounded, or if they cannot assist in work of that kind they are adding their savings to promote the good work. They are knitting and sewing for the soldiers at the front. The suffragists have given so little trouble to the government that it will undoubtedly soften the hearts of those in Parliament, since the "militants" have turned all their energies to aid the fighting men of England, and so suffrage may soon come after this terrible war is over.

"Thousands of women in Canada have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of woman's ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This temperance medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells most widely to-day, because it is made without alcohol or narcotics. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce. It is prepared from nature's roots and herbs and does not contain a particle of alcohol or any narcotic. It's not a secret prescription for its ingredients are printed on wrapper.

Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of. In ninety-nine per cent. of these cases it is the womanly organism that requires attention; the weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes, are only symptoms. Go to the source of trouble. When that is corrected the other symptoms disappear.

St. Thomas, Ont.—"I wish to say for the benefit of other women who suffer that I recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a great help. I have personally recommended the same to many who in turn have been helped a great deal by its use."—MRS. F. J. BOWDEN, 19 Oliver St., St. Thomas, Ont.

worth while unless the land is kept up to a high standard and its earnings are reasonably good. It has been painfully demonstrated over and over again in the past year or two that we should not risk everything on a single interest like dairying. When disease strikes a herd or when prices are too low the farmer gets nothing for his toil or investment and may be wiped out entirely. Now, let us cut down our risk without decreasing the earnings or depleting the soil. Reduce the average dairy to one-half its size and the price of milk will be enhanced, while the risk of disaster is lessened just so much. Then to keep up the number of animals on the place, with a view to maintaining soil fertility, suppose we carry a good sized herd of hogs and a carload of young beef animals. In that way we broaden our interests and keep up a profitable kind of farming. Of course there will have to be both hay and corn, and if a farmer finds any surplus on hand both products bring good prices. I have just completed the sale of a lot of timothy hay at $21 a ton, and my crop averaged a ton and a half per acre. I agree that it pays best to consume all such stuff on the place, but I am speaking of what should be done when there is a surplus of hay or other feed.

"In the past few weeks I have sold hogs at a very satisfactory profit. Some of my Duroc animals reached a weight of 300 pounds in ten months and brought $9 a hundred. Everything they consumed was raised on the place. I believe in pork production, but the hogs must be kept healthy and thrifty."

In a number of other cases Illinois farmers are pushing the diversity idea in a most significant way. Many are establishing orchards with a hope of taking advantage of the high prices for fruit. They are also developing poultry plants and truck gardens. Although Illinois has the big central market of all right at hand, this state is away behind several others in the matter of potato production as well as in other things of the kind. Michigan and Wisconsin lead Illinois in potatoes, beans, onions and certain kinds of fruits. It is the modern view that all these staple products should have a place large enough on each farm so that they will receive proper attention and not be handled merely as side lines.

Mixed farming under modern methods becomes a commercial business, and men are able to secure a monthly income winter and summer. With a well balanced program, including grain, live stock, fruit, vegetables, etc., an income far in excess of what can be depended on with any single industry is certain. There is a general turning from old methods, and many cases of successful diversity like that of Mr. Reed could be reported.

crowpeas, soy beans, crimson clover, red clover, sweet clover, bur clover, Japanese clover and vetch.

THE WILD ONION.

Although persistent, wild onion spreads very slowly when left to its own devices. The bulblets, however, may be transported in hay and grain, in seeds, on thrashing machines and on the hoofs of animals. Attention should be given then to prevention of introduction and measures adopted to guard against spreading if it has gained a foothold.

The wild onion is well supplied with means of propagation, producing for this seeds, aerial bulblets and basal bulblets of two sorts, commonly called hard and soft bulblets. The soft bulblets start into growth in the fall, while the hard bulblets are delayed in development until the following spring. It is because of these many forms of bulblets that the wild garlic is so persistent and responds so little to ordinary cultivation as a means of eradication.—New Jersey Station.

SACREDNESS OF SOIL.

The Farmer Holds His Farm Only In Trust.

[D. C. Wing, Wisconsin station.] When entering into a contract farm owners and farm tenants do well to remember that the land, too, is a party to the contract.

That vital quality in the soil, its bacterial life, supports the race when it makes the conditions that create bread and meat.

If the fertility of the soil is to be protected as the heritage of the human family, if the perpetuity of the race depends on the bacterial life of the soil, then it is wise to enlarge ideals of the oneness of all life. It is wise to instill a reverence for the sacred quality of the soil.

Despite a warranty deed, with its imposing phrases, the farmer, in fact, holds his farm only in trust, and in his treatment of the soil the race, too, is a party, a party which asks a square deal for the soil.

Forage and live stock together unite to make a fundamental contribution to the increase and to the maintenance of soil bacteria. One who uses the soil has the power to create the conditions of life, if not life itself. A rare revelation comes, sometimes in the pasture, sometimes in the field of upturned sod, a revelation that is perhaps not clear. It is only an intimation that all life is one, that the blade of blue grass is a part of the same life as the planet that shines through the summer night, as the crystal snow that gleams in the moonlight, as the bacteria that bless the winter sleep and guide the summer work of the sod.

Lath Shades In Plant Growing. It is often necessary to shade seedlings and small or delicate plants from lengths for easy covering a decay in the soil.

But the greatest value of disking before plowing lies in that the plowed field has fir the bottom of the furrow, which not disked before plowing cloddy and very porous beneath renders it too loose and full air cavities for the best needs grain roots. All small grains very fine and well compacted. The roots of the plants will not but will frequently die, in cloddy ground filled with air cavities, especially in weather conditions which off the seeding of small grain exist at the time of fall seedir chic turban. Draped models are also a fall hallmark, and quills are thrusting themselves forward, as ever, as piquant trimming.

From Ribbon.

You can make the smartest kind of a little tam from a very wide grosgrain ribbon. A band of buckram to act as a foundation is first covered with the ribbon, and then the ribbon is folded in half and plaited in wide box plaits to a central point at the top of the crown. The plaiting is covered with a motif of wool flowers embroidered on scrim. A chic bow of the ribbon is tied and secured at one side.

You cannot imagine anything prettier than this tam, and, what is better still, it lies within the power of any clever girl to make one herself. If the ribbon is not stiff enough to stand upright after it has been attached to the buckram band, it might be well to line it with a layer of flat buckram, though the soft effect of the ribbon by itself is preferable.

A Smart Collar.

The neck line is, like the waist line, no longer a stationary thing. From Paris comes a high collar of black taffeta tied in the back with a flaring bow and falling over it in a circular collar of white organdy—the whole a smart little conceit which is especially becoming to the tall, slender woman. High collars are not easy to wear, but they are smart.

HOMEMADE NIGHTGOWNS.

Tips About the Newest Ways
of Making Such Robes.

The day when a homemade nightgown necessarily indicated weeks of hand embroidery or else a few hours' stitching on stiff, thick muslin has gone by. And now we can make a nightgown in a few hours, with only a saving touch of hand work, and yet produce something that is charmingly dainty.

Sheer materials, of course, which are always used nowadays for nightgowns, have much to do with this change. The fact, too, that nightgown patterns now almost invariably show short sleeves and open necks also has much to do with their daintiness.

The nightgown with an empire waist line is a favorite just now, and is deservedly so, for the long, full lines of the skirt are most becoming. Some sort of wide collar, too, is always becoming, but it wrinkles very easily in a nightgown. Reverses at the front are shown in some of the newer patterns, and those give softness and fulness and are not so easily wrinkled as a collar. Much variety can be given by the use of slashed and puffed sleeves, and the use of cuffs of various sorts is also worth trying.

Batiste is a very good material for nightgowns, especially in colors. The pale pink and blue shades of this material, which can be had for about 20 cents a yard, are especially attractive. Nainsook in a soft quality is also a good material. Figured dimity, too, can be used, and this season much figured cotton crape of soft quality and dainty design has been used for pretty and durable nightgowns.

The use of much entre deux in the seams of fine nightgowns is a dainty touch, and especially in the nightgown which shows much hand work is this method of finishing seams advis-

the greatest value of surface plowing lies in the fact that the plowed field has fine soil at the bottom of the furrow, while ground left unplowed is often very porous beneath, which is too loose and full of large spaces for the best needs of small seeds. All small grains require a firm and well compacted seed bed, and the plants will not thrive, frequently die, in loose and porous soil filled with extensive cracks, especially under dry conditions which often follow the growth of small grain and which is the time of fall seeding.

FARM WEEDS.

Weeds are first and foremost a farmer's pocketbook, and it is a heavy toll that they demand dependent upon their quantity. The annual loss to this class of plants is at millions of dollars for wheat. The dockage on wheat due to the weed seeds present is as to be difficult to estimate. The nature of the damage is indicated in the following table, each item of which might be sold in dollars and cents or as a percentage of the profit. Try to figure out the growing crops, consume moisture necessary for development, consume plant food elements of the maximum crop, decrease the market and feed value of the crop, harbor injurious insects and diseases, interfere with and often disarrange proper cultivation, may be poisonous to farm stock and man, make unsightly farms and decrease their market value.—New York.

FOR THE SEWING ROOM.

Hints For Women Who Do Their Own Family Sewing.

A chiffonier or bureau in the sewing room will be found indispensable. One drawer is used for the stock room, and the small wares are kept therein; one is for patterns, one for pieces to use for patching and mending and one for clothing to be mended or fixed over.

An old iron basket is just the thing to hold your work while sewing. It takes the place of the old fashioned bird that is seen sometimes.

If the pins are kept in a deep saucer one can pick them up or throw them down easily when fitting a dress.

Take a board of the desired length and width and drive a number of nails through two inches apart. These will hold the spools of thread. The numbers can be quickly seen, and there will be no tangling with the scissors.

Cream jars are excellent for buttons, as they can be classified and easily distinguished therein.

An old sheet spread on the floor will catch all threads and can be easily shaken, leaving the room tidy with no exertion.

The use of much entire seam in the seams of fine nightgowns is a dainty touch, and especially in the nightgown which shows much hand work is this method of finishing seams advisable.

Hand embroidery can also be set into a nightgown with entre deux. In this way fine hand embroidered yokes and panels can be used.

The rolled hem that is so much seen nowadays—in handkerchiefs and fine blouses—can be utilized in the nightgown. The hem is finely rolled and is then whipped with thread of color, first in one direction and then in the other, forming a sort of cross stitch finish.

A pretty finish for a white nightgown is a binding of colored bias folds of muslin. This folded bias finish can be bought both in plain colors and in stripes and plaids. Sleeves and neck can both be bound in this way and a band of the colored fold can be placed at the line of an empire waist line, to have ribbon run under it.

In the same manner cotton or georgette crape underwear can be finished with ribbon used as binding.

Fall Styles For Children.

The question of fashion in garments for the tots is largely one of becomingness. But, of course, every item of apparel planned for the small citizen should wash.

Some of the smart little simple dresses for children shown this fall are plaited from shoulder to hem; some are in Russian blouse effect with plaited skirts. Suspended dresses with washable waists and little frocks equipped with washable guimpes are also in favor.

Tub fabrics are unquestionably first choice, or should be, for the very young children. But plain and plaid serge and velveteen dresses for girls of eight to ten and twelve years are smart. For school wear bright colors and cuffs are used on dark color frocks, and detachable collars and cuffs of linen, pique, etc., are also used effectively on some of the school frocks.

LADY IRENE CURZON.

sist upon his daughter marrying a man connected with one of the great houses of the peerage. Lady Irene will, however, inherit her father's barony and become Baroness Ravensdale after his death, in case he does not marry again himself and have a son to assume all of his titles—Earl Curzon, Viscount Scarsdale and Baron Ravensdale. Only the last can descend through the female line. Lord Curzon, in marrying the former Mary Leiter of Chicago, made a romantic marriage, in spite of the bride possessing an enormous fortune. The two were deeply in love, and when separated by the Atlantic ocean during the engagement—Curzon being compelled to leave America and return to London—they exchanged telegrams of greeting every day. Lady Irene is very like her mother in appearance, being tall and graceful, and she is credited with having a good deal of her father's strength of character.

The prospective groom is one of three sons of Robert Henry Benson, a very wealthy Londoner, who is a trustee of the British National gallery and a member of council of the Victoria and Albert museum and of the Royal College of Music, all in London.

Both Lady Irene and Mr. Benson are still in their teens.

Draped Bonnets.

Draped effects are very prominent on the latest hats of velvet and soft satin. One model of dark blue velvet has the material piled quite high. It is void of trimming except in the extreme front, where a white satin rectangular band is embroidered in blue wool.

Another model of black satin has the material brought up to a central point on top and gathered about one little satin covered button. It reminds one of the bouffant skirt of the old time pin cushion. This bonnet, however, boasts of a shallow brim, which droops in a coy manner over the forehead. Two curved stick ornaments project from the front.

Suggestive of a sliding board, dear to the child's heart, is a purple velvet turban which is built high at the back and gradually decreases in height as it nears the front.

Death of Mrs. F. A. Snider.
 Rose Hall, beloved wife of Mr. F. A.
 Snider, Napanee, died quite suddenly on Saturday morning after but a week's illness. Mr. and Mrs. Snider went to Odessa the previous Sunday
 to visit Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Snider and on starting for home Mr. Snider's car refused to work and he barely missed striking a tree. The accident gave Mrs. Snider somewhat of a shock and they returned to Mr. W. C. Sni-der's house. After supper while sitting around the table deceased suffered a slight paralytic stroke from which she apparently recovered after medical attention, but her heart remained very weak, and she passed away the following Saturday. The funeral took place on Monday, to the Wilton cemetery. Deceased was the youngest daughter of Mr. William Hall, Napanee.

Eastern Ontario District Dairy Meeting.
 The Annual District Dairy Meeting
 for the County of Lennox and Addington will be held in the town of Centreville, Wed., Nov. 29th, 1916, at 2 o'clock p. m., under the auspices of the Provincial Department of Agriculture and the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario. Mr. G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor for Eastern Ontario, Mr. L. A. Zufelt, Superintendent of the Dairy School, Kingston,
 Mr. Henry Glendinning, of Manilla, and the District Representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, will address the meeting. The Local Dairy Instructor will be present and report upon his work during the season. M. N. Empey, Director for the District, will occupy the chair. At the close of the meeting a Director will be nominated to represent the District for the ensuing year. This will be a very important meeting as the new Dairy Act will be under discussion, and every farmer and farmer's son, who has the interest of his calling at heart, as well as its monetary success, should not fail to be present.

REV. C. O. JOHNSTON IS CALLED BY DEATH

Rev. C. O. Johnston, for many years one of the outstanding preachers of Toronto, died at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. F. W. Wood, 112 Geoffrey street, early Saturday morning. He has been in failing health for some time, and the Hamilton Conference last June superannated him on this account. He succumbed finally to creeping paralysis at the age of sixty-four years.

Rev. Mr. Johnston was born near Newmarket, and as educated in Guelph and in Toronto. He served for forty-two years in the ministry,
and of that time he was in Toronto over twenty-five years. For some years he was in charge of the Queen street Methodist Church, and while there was one of the most notable preachers in the city. He also was pastor before that, of Wesley Church, Bathurst Street Methodist Church,
and in his younger days the Old Memorial Church. He also filled charges at St. Catharines, Napanee and Kingston. Four years ago he went to Hamilton, but failing health affected him during the last two years.

He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. (Rev.) G. Glover of Carleton Place, and Mrs. (Rev.)
C. C. Washington of Rosemeath, Ont.
